CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — A South African hospital claimed Sunday the world's first successful human heart transplant. Surgeons removed the heart of a young woman who died after an automobile crash and placed it in the chest of a 55-year-old man dying because his own heart was damaged, the announcement said.

When the transplanted heart was in place, it was started beating by an electric shock. Dr. Jan H. Louw, the hospital's chief surgeon, said, "It was like turning the ignition switch of a car."

Groote Schuur Hospital said the man was in satisfactory condition late Sunday but that the next few days would be a critical period.

The heart was removed from the body of Denise Ann Darvall, 24, an accounting machine operator at a bank, and transferred to Louis Washkansky, a Jewish businessman, the hospital said.

Washkansky, described as of medium build, was reported fully conscious and in very satisfactory condition after the five-hour operation that ended at 6 a.m. The announcement said his blood pressure was normal by Sunday afternoon.

In the first stage of the heart transplant operation, both Washkansky and the body of Miss Darvall were put on heart-lung machines, each manned by a team of technicians.

In the second stage, the donor's heart was removed and the circulation of her heart, once it was taken out, was kept going by a pump.

The third stage was the removal of Washkansky's heart.

The fourth and most intricate stage of the operation was the placing of the donor's heart in Washkansky's body. When the transplant was completed, electrodes were placed against the heart walls and a high current was switched on for a fraction of a second.

The heart started beating immediately, said Louw.

Surgeons at California's Stanford Medical Center have been reported by the Journal of the American Medical Association to be ready for a heart transplant whenever the ideal donor and ideal recipient appeared there at the same time. Animal heart transplants have been successful at that center.

The announcement of the transplant to Washkansky came from Dr. Jacobus G. Burger, medical supervisor of the Groote Schuur Hospital.

"The operation was his only chance," Burger said. "Washkansky was dying and wouldn't have lived longer than a few days otherwise."

Burger said the next two or three days would be the critical postoperative period. "The longer Washkansky goes on, the better," he said, "although it does not mean the heart will not be rejected later. The body could decide in 5 or 10 years' time that it doesn't want this heart."

Dr. Burger said apart from the body's natural tendency to reject the heart, the main danger could come from blood clotting and resultant heart failure.

Washkansky has a tracheotomy—a tube inserted in his throat through which he is breathing—and is unable to speak, said Burger. He is being kept absolutely quiet in a special room.

Washkansky is being fed anti-clotting drugs to counter this.

"We are also using steroids to prevent the heart being thrown out (rejected)," Burger said.

The woman donor was injured fatally in an auto accident Saturday afternoon. Neurosurgeons, with an electroencephalogram to measure her brain waves, alerted the cardiac surgeons the instant she died—shortly before 1 a.m. and the operation began immediately.

"The operation had to begin within half an hour of her death," Burger said.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk has ordered a broad review of United States programs in Latin America. The move is part of the State Department's newly focused attention on the problem of unwieldy and often unnecessary Federal programs overseas, and is centered now in the American Embassy in Brazil.

Officials in the treasury are said to be watching with genuine alarm to see what happens to interest rates in the coming weeks. There is a deep fear that if Congress does not budge on the administration's tax increase request already high interest rates could rise so steeply as to do damage to the economy.

THE WONDER OF IT ALL

Children's eyes grow wider as Christmas draws nearer. They are awed by bright baubles and toy displays and visions of presents on Christmas Day. Robert Stafford 4-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Stafford of 17 Dittmar st., North Warren was one of several youngsters who took part in the annual "Hanging of the Green" program held Sunday at the local YWCA.

Decorating Christmas trees was only one of several highlights of the program. Group singing of familiar Christmas Carols, led by Mrs. Everett Borg, and Christmas stories offered by Carl Sacherich, intern St. Paul's Lutheran Church, were also featured on the program. (Photo by Knight)

Vietcong Launch Heavy Mortar, Ground Attacks

SAIGON (AP) — Allied forces fought off heavy Communist mortar attacks Sunday in the Bu Dop area near Cambodia's border and along the central coast. U.S. B52 bombers kept up pressure on North Vietnamese army regulars along the demilitarized zone and in the central highlands.

Northeast monsoons swept across North Vietnam, once more limiting strikes by American fighter-bombers.

In the ground fighting, U.S. and South Vietnamese troops killed 77 Communists, the U.S. Command reported. It said over-all American losses in four separate attacks were 12 killed and 68 wounded. The South Vietnamese, who do not enumerate their dead and wounded, reported their casualties as light.

The predawn attacks around Bu Dop followed up Red mortar bombardments Saturday night of the U.S. Green Beret camp in the village three miles from the Cambodian frontier and 84 miles north of Saigon. Another target of enemy bombardment Saturday was an encampment of U.S. 1st Infantry Division troops sent to the Bu Dop area Wednesday to bolster Green Beret defenses.

The Green Berets and their South Vietnamese defenders took 200 rounds of 82mm mortar fire. An enemy direct hit set off a spectacular fire in the camp's ammunition dump. Eight Americans and 15 South Vietnamese were wounded.

At the same time, 1st Division troops a half mile west of the Bu Dop airstrip came under a 150 round enemy mortar attack. Enemy troops also opened up with small-arms fire. The Americans reported no casualties.

One of the mortar assaults Sunday caught a company of 1st Division troops while they were apparently preparing night defensive positions about a mile northwest of the Bu Dop airstrip. Within 10 minutes the Communists slammed 40 rounds of 82mm mortar shells into the U.S. positions. Two American infantrymen were killed and 20 wounded.

Just after midnight Saturday, a battalion from the 1st Division was attacked by an enemy force of unknown size about 32 miles to the south of Bu Dop.

Vacation Bureau Proposes $16,000 Budget for '68

The Kinzua Dam Vacation Bureau of the Warren County Development Association has filed a 1968 operating budget of $16,028 with the Department of Commerce in Harrisburg, according to Robert C. Dilks, chairman.

At the same time, the vacation bureau requested the department to grant $8,305 to Warren County in matching funds to help carry on the agency's program of development and promotion.

Dilks told members of the vacation bureau's steering committee on Thursday that Warren County is entitled to a minimum of $5,000 in matching funds under a recent appropriation by the legislature.

Blain M. Mead, Dr. David K. Rice and Thomas Donnelly, the county's recently elected commissioners were guests at last week's meeting.

Also attending were Dr. Julius Fino, president and Barry Epstein, executive vice president of the Warren Area Chamber of Commerce.

Charles R. Tranter, the bureau's executive director reported that the tourist promotion agency has operated this year on a budget of $13,000 and received a grant of $3,080 in state funds.

Plans are underway now for a county-wide membership campaign in March to enlist future support for the group's activities.

Henry LeMour, historical & cultural committee chairman announced that data was now being collected for a feasibility study in connection with a proposed historical outdoor musical drama. The study will be completed by the Institute of Outdoor Drama at the University of North Carolina, he said.

Thant Receives Three Replies To Peace Appeal

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — Greece, Turkey, and Cyprus sent three different replies today to Secretary General Thant's appeal for peace in Cyprus. All three replies could be considered as accepting the appeal for peace, in the sense that they did not reject it.

This was considered a gain by Thant, United States Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg and Lord Caradon, the British chief representative, who have tried to end the crisis.

The reply of Cyprus President Makarios, relayed by Zenon Rossides, the Cypriot representative at the UN said only that he welcomed the constructive suggestion made by Thant and that his full reply would be sent in 12 hours.

The Greek ambassador welcomed Thant's proposal and told the Secretary General that his government would be willing to carry it out.

President Suleyman Demirel of Turkey, in accepting Thant's appeal, also gave his government's support to that point in Thant's message which emphasized that an expansion of the UN forces on Cyprus might be necessary to oversee disarmament on the island and to end communal fighting there.

Goldberg and Lord Caradon had urged a favorable response upon the three governments in messages issued shortly after Thant's appeal.

Thant's key paragraph from the Cypriot standpoint, discusses enlarging the mandate of the 4,500-man United Nations force in Cyprus to give it "broader functions in regard to the realization of quiet and peace in Cyprus, including supervision of disarmament and

Joseph Kelley Named Successor to Craig Truax

HARRISBURG (AP) — Joseph J. Kelley Jr., executive secretary to Gov. Shafer, was nominated this weekend by Shafer to succeed Craig Truax as commonwealth secretary.

Shafer said that Robert K. Bloom, a close personal friend from Meadville and Crawford County Republican chairman, would replace Kelley on the governor's immediate staff at $25,000 annually.

Shafer also announced that the duties of Hugh Flaherty, his legislative secretary, have been expanded to include supervision of public relations at a $5,000 increase in his $20,000 salary.

Kelley would retain his $25,000 salary by moving into the official cabinet. His nomination will have to be confirmed by the Senate.

Truax said a week ago that he intended to resign as Commonwealth secretary Jan. 1 to become legislative liaison for Republican House Majority Leader Lee A. Donaldson.

U.S. Plans Staff Cuts At Major Embassies

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — Early last summer John Wills Tutill, the United States Ambassador to Brazil, received a request from a Washington federal agency — not the State Department — for a survey on "hats and noxious birds" in Brazil.

For Tutill this was the final straw in an escalation of programs and personnel that had expanded the American Embassy in Rio de Janeiro to a total of nearly 1,000 U.S. citizens and more than 1,000 Brazilian local employees.

Since that time Secretary of State Dean Rusk has authorized a sweeping review of U.S. programs in Latin America.

To start with, Rusk and Undersecretary Nicholas de B. Katzenbach authorized Tutill to invite to Brazil a team of representatives of the State and Defense Departments, as well as other federal agencies, with the aim of cutting their swollen staffs in that country by up to one-half.

"Every U.S. government employee overseas costs the taxpayer an average of $25,000 per year," a senior State Department administrator said recently.

Tutill is to report here in a fortnight and while his recommendations are still secret there is little doubt that they will be approved at the highest echelons of the State Department. Some officials predict Tutill's operation will be the pilot project for similar pruning in some dozen major American embassies abroad.

In London, Paris, Rome, Bonn, Moscow, Rio de Janeiro, Mexico City, New Delhi, Manila and Tokyo, the U.S. missions each comprise approximately 1,000 U.S. citizens. One-fifth come from the State Department; the rest represent 34 government programs ranging from the Defense Department, the Agency for International Development, the Central Intelligence Agency and the United States Information Agency down to obscure bureaus that request — and virtually always get — surveys on such matters as "hats and noxious birds."

In the 119 U.S. embassies the ambassador is the head of the entire "country team," as it is known. This authority was established by President Kennedy.

Treasury Is Alarmed By Outlook for Interest Rates

(C) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — There is a sense of quiet but genuine alarm in the Treasury Department over what might happen to interest rates in the coming weeks if Congress shows no movement on a tax increase before it adjourns.

No one is talking of financial collapse or panic. But at the very top levels of the Treasury there is a deep fear that interest rates could rise so steeply in the immediate future as to do lasting damage — damage that could not be wholly repaired even if Congress eventually does move on a tax increase next year.

"The markets still have some hope of action," said one high official. "If that hope goes, there is no telling how high rates will go."

Rates fell markedly on the news two weeks ago that the House ways and means committee would resume consideration of the tax bill. They rose again last Thursday and Friday on the news that the committee chairman, Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., had still made no decision to act.

These interest rates are the ones set in daily trading of bonds and other securities in the markets. They strongly influence, with some lag, the rates paid by consumer and business borrowers.

Rates, in some cases, already are the highest in a century. They have risen primarily because of the huge borrowing needs of the Treasury to cover the deficit in the budget — a deficit that the tax increase would substantially reduce.

As market interest rates rise, some savers withdraw their funds from savings banks and savings and loan associations in search of a higher return.

These thrift institutions are the primary source of mortgage funds for the purchase of houses.

Thousands Expected To View Cardinal's Body

NEW YORK (AP) — In a steady rain, police set up wood barriers outside St. Patrick's Cathedral Sunday, expecting thousands to view the body of Francis Cardinal Spellman lying in state.

Cardinal Spellman, senior prince of the Roman Catholic Church in the United States, died Saturday of a stroke at the age of 78.

His body will lie on a catafalque in the center aisle of the big cathedral on Fifth Avenue until a funeral Mass Thursday.

He will be buried in a crypt under the high altar, alongside earlier archbishops of New York.

All seven surviving Roman Catholic cardinals in the United States are expected to attend the funeral, a church spokesman said.

Pope Paul VI sent telegrams of condolence to Cardinal Spellman's brother, Martin Spellman of Boston, and to the Most Rev. John J. Maguire, coadjutor archbishop of New York, who was named interim administrator of the archdiocese.

The Pope will name a new archbishop of New York, but he is not expected to act for several months. There is no line of succession, and the Pope can appoint any ordained priest to the post as head of the church's richest archdiocese.

Spellman was an auxiliary bishop in Boston when he was named to the job in 1959 by the late Pope Pius XII. He was made a cardinal in 1964.

In a statement issued Saturday, President Johnson noted that "this will be the first Christmas for many years when thousands of our sons will not know the comfort of his presence."

As military vicar, Cardinal Spellman for 14 consecutive years visited U.S. forces on battlefields in Korea and Vietnam, or at bases from Greenland to the South Pole.

Cable Car Breaks Loose

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A cable car broke loose in a driving rain Sunday night, hurtled down steep Hyde Street and rammed an automobile broadside at the Bay Street intersection.

Emergency hospital attendants said 27 were injured, one critically.

A dozen victims were quickly brought into an emergency hospital, some of them burned by flaming gasoline which eyewitnesses said spread over the cable car after the gasoline tank on the automobile ruptured.

Both vehicles kept on going after the collision, eyewitnesses said, because of the heavy rain.

One of the victims brought to the hospital, Jim Koseck, 22, of Clarendon Hills, Ill., said the cable car "lost its brakes."

"A big sheet of flame hit the cable car after the collision with the car," said Koseck.

Temporary Rules Committee Gets Down to Work Monday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

HARRISBURG (AP) — Constitutional Convention President Raymond J. Broderick is hopeful that lobbyists who have been elected delegates will not attempt to influence the operations of the three-month convention.

"It would certainly be my personal opinion that delegates who are lobbyists have a conflict of interest and should abstain from lobbying," said Broderick, who also is lieutenant governor of Pennsylvania.

Harold A. Thomson said he and former Superior Court Judge Robert F. Woodside would abstain from lobbying for the State Association of Township Supervisors.

Thomson is a registered lobbyist for the association as is Woodside's law firm. The two have taken leaves of absence from their positions as lobbyists, Thomson said.

There are other lobbyists among the 163 delegates including Floyd W. Musselman who works for the Pennsylvania

Manufacturers Association.

Meanwhile, the man who certified the delegate elections says he is delighted by what he calls a spirit of bipartisanship in the convention so far.

"I'm tickled. The two parties are working together to make that succeed — and it's going to succeed," said Commonwealth Secretary Craig Truax. "This is a good group of delegates."

The convention, which got underway in the House chamber here Friday, returns to work Monday.

The first order of business, is the adoption of rules of order. But that may not come for a couple of days.

A temporary rules committee of 18 delegates, evenly divided politically, is to meet at 11 a.m. Monday to review regulations recommended by the 13-man legislative Preparatory Committee, which conducted the Convention's initial research.

The temporary panel has former Gov. William W. Scranton, a Republican, and former state Sen. Robert P. Casey, a Democrat, as co-chairmen.

"I would hope that the committee can adopt the rules by Tuesday and submit them to the convention floor," Casey said. "I would also hope that the delegates could take final action before the end of the week."

With 10 of the old Preparatory Committee on the temporary rules committee, it seemed a safe assumption that the Scranton-Casey panel would approve regulations quite similar to what had been recommended.

"I saw a draft of the rules two days before the convention convened (last Friday)," Casey said. "I think they're pretty good rules."

While the rules committee prepared its report, convention planners scheduled a week-long series of events which would keep the delegates occupied ceremonially, at least.

Monday is Governor's Day with the seven former governors invited to witness the proceedings and make a few comments.

Tuesday is Congressional Day,

Masked Gunman Steals $25,000

DREXEL HILL, Pa. (AP) — A masked gunman shoved a pistol in the faces of two supermarket customers outside a bank here Sunday and stole $25,000 in receipts they were about to deposit.

The gunman escaped in a white convertible which was later found abandoned by police, but not until after several persons driving cars matching the description were stopped for questioning.

Upper Darby Township police said the theft occurred as the two employees of the Fernwood Market, a locally-owned food chain, were about to put $19,000 in cash and $6,000 in checks into the night depository of the Girard Trust Bank branch across the street from the store.

The employees, George Valentine, 22, and Raymond Wopatek, 21, said the gunman pulled up behind them in his auto wearing a bandana over the lower half of his face. They said he told them:

"Throw the money in or else you'll get a bullet in you."

They complied by heaving the money-filled satchel onto the seat and he drove off, they told police.

McNamara's Successor To Have Little Influence

(C) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — The man who follows Robert S. McNamara as secretary of the biggest defense establishment in the world early next year is expected to have very little influence over the broad sweep of defense policy.

This became apparent with word that McNamara would stay in his present post long enough to finish drawing up the next defense budget. That fact, plus the approach of the Presidential election, mitigate against the new secretary being much more than an administrator, rather an innovator, at least through November 5, 1968.

For the voluminous budget that will go to Congress around Jan. 20 will present the major military decisions on which President Johnson will be judged next November. The one exception, of course, will be Vietnam. But even there, the level of spending on troops and equipment will determine the overall shape, if not the day-to-day tactics, of war-making.

It takes nearly a full year to hammer out a defense budget, now running about $75 billion in expenditures, with compromises and hard choices — the really tough ones being made by the President in consultation with the Secretary of Defense and the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

To what extent will the United States hold back on any expansion of its offensive and defensive missile capability while awaiting possible arms limitation talks with the Soviet Union?

Should there be a new long range bomber, more nuclear-powered surface ships, development of a new intercontinental ballistic missile for the 1970s, more helicopters, barracks, brooms?

A new man, be he closely associated with the Defense Department or a complete outsider, could hardly repudiate any basic policy decision reflected in the Johnson-McNamara budget, particularly in an election year.

"The man who succeeds Secretary McNamara will find all these decisions carved in rock," noted one official.

Acheson Says U.S. Can't Negotiate Way Out of Viet

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
NEW YORK — Dean Acheson, the former United States Secretary of State, asserted Sunday that there was "no possibility of negotiating our way out of Vietnam."

The only way to end the war, he said, is to convince the Communists that their effort has failed.

"Too many people," declared Acheson, "have a completely wrong idea of negotiation as conceived of by the Communists and as conceived of by us—a different idea.

"With us, negotiation is a David Harum business in which both parties want to reach a result and each one wants to get a slight advantage in reaching a predetermined result—sale of a horse, end of a war, whatever it may be.

"The Communists have a Clausewitz idea toward negotiation. Karl von Clausewitz was an 18th Century Prussian general and military writer. Negotiation is war carried out by other means, and what they hope to do in a negotiation is not to bring about peace, but to disadvantage somebody in the course of a war, separate you from your allies, cause you domestic trouble at home, and so forth."

The 74-year-old Acheson, who served under President Harry S. Truman, voiced his views in a two-hour interview by four college students. The interview was broadcast on an education television program produced by the Public Broadcasting Laboratory.

"In all the experience I have had with the Communists," he said, "negotiation never preceded a settlement or got anywhere." He said this experience included Communist operations against Greece, the Berlin Blockade and the Korean War. Turning to Vietnam, he said:

"When the Communists feel that this effort has not succeeded, they will stop the effort. But if they get talking with us, then we get on this eternal flypaper, in which half the United States will be negotiating for them."

Jamestown P.O. Lists Rush Hours

JAMESTOWN, N.Y. — Jamestown Postmaster H. Wilbur Johnson, announced this weekend that additional hours to handle the annual Christmas rush will begin this coming week-end.

The windows at the main post office will remain open on Friday night until 8:30 o'clock. Johnson said the Saturday hours have been extended to 5:30 p.m. Stamps can be purchased and packages mailed on Sunday between the hours of 1 and 6 p.m. Beginning Monday, Dec. 11, the post office will remain open each day until 8:30 p.m.

Postmaster Johnson also suggested some specific dates for packages being sent to members of the armed forces overseas. He said such air mail should be brought to the post office no later than Saturday. He suggested that parcels going to the far western states should also be mailed this week while those going to local and nearby areas should be mailed no later than Dec. 13.

Greeting cards being sent to distant states, the postmaster said, should be mailed by Saturday while local deliveries should be postmarked no later than Dec. 15.

Shortly after its passage, actor Robert Vaughn, national chairman of Dissenting Democrats, said his group also had decided in a closed caucus to endorse McCarthy. Dissenting Democrats, organized in California in June, has member groups in 20 states, Vaughn said.

Delegates to the convention were all members of the Democratic party. While college groups were well represented, most of the delegates were older. There were very few bearded delegates and conference attire for the men included ties and white shirts and for the women dresses. Very few Negroes were in attendance.

The state delegations included a sprinkling of Democratic party members with positions on the local level, but the only congressman present besides McCarthy was Rep. Don Edwards of California, national chairman of the Americans for Democratic Action.

McCarthy, who addressed delegates Saturday night but returned to Washington before they met Sunday, had announced Thursday that he would oppose Johnson in four and possibly more state primaries next year. Saturday he added Massachusetts to the list of state primaries he would enter, in an announcement at the convention. The others are Wisconsin, Nebraska, Oregon and California.

Zolton Ferency, who resigned as state Democratic chairman of Michigan in protest against Johnson's Vietnam policy, addressed the delegates before the resolution was approved.

He endorsed McCarthy, but added a phrase that would provide an out should Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D.N.Y., or some other party leader decide to make the race at a later date.

He urged the delegates to work hard because "there is still time with McCarthy or some other candidate next year" to achieve victory.

Says Prospects Good For Heart Transplant

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Navy researcher in the field of organ transplants said Sunday "there is quite a chance" that the world's transplant might survive "at least two years or more."

Dr. Kenneth Sell of the U.S. Naval Medical Research Institute said at least several dogs, which had received heart transplants from other dogs, still are alive two years after the surgical transfer.

But he cautioned in talking to a newsmen that prospects for such long-term success in the case of the patient in Cape Town, South Africa, could only begin to be evaluated some 10 to 11 days from now.

This is when he said the "next critical period in this case would take place" — that is, the time when the first signs of immunological rejection of the heart might ordinarily be expected to show up.

However, Sell said that in the dog experiments, the animals — with the help of so-called immunosuppressive drugs — have apparently combated such a rejection reaction to some extent.

And the doctor said he is glad that surgeons have finally attempted a heart transplant in a human because "certainly it is just as feasible to transplant a heart as a kidney."

He said he believes the reasons surgeons have not attempted heart transplants before is that "They know that failure means immediate death—whereas, if the transplant fails you can always put a patient on an artificial kidney, keep the patient alive and maybe try transplantation again later."

SHIFT IN PRICING POLICY

Bell Offers Flexible Package For Residence Subscribers

The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania, in a shift in pricing policy, today proposed a flexible money-saving "package" offering for residence subscribers who want certain specialty terms in groups of three or more.

Under the proposal, filed with the Public Utility Commission to become effective February 1, 1968, a customer will be able to designate any combination of telephone sets in any combination of colors with any length cord up to 13 feet for a fixed monthly "package" charge.

This optional proposal applies primarily to Bell's most popular "premium" hardware items—the Princess and Trimline telephones.

Gen. Rabin Steps Down; Is Named Ambassador

JERUSALEM (AP) — Maj. Gen. Itzhak Rabin, mastermind of Israel's victory over the Arabs in June, stepped down as military chief of staff Sunday amid reports the government of Prime Minister Levi Eshkol would appoint him ambassador to the United States.

Brig. Gen. Haim Bar-Lev, up to now deputy chief, was named by the Cabinet to succeed Rabin.

Rabin, 44, has been the armed forces chief for four years, a year longer than usual.

Defense Minister Moshe Dayan proposed Bar-Lev, 43, a Yugoslav-born career officer, to assume command of Israel's armed forces.

He expressed satisfaction that Rabin—one of his junior officers in the World War Jewish Palmach underground—would "continue to work in the national interest."

This was seen here as an indication the sandy-haired, soft-spoken soldier would be named Israel's envoy to Washington.

Israeli-born Rabin fought the British and the Arabs during his military career. In 1946 he was high on the British Palestine authorities "most wanted" list and finally was arrested after dynamiting a police post. He spent assistant vice president—marketing, said the proposal stems from "a continuing desire to give our customers new and improved service features."

Ruschhaupt explained that instead of paying separate monthly charges for extensions and for the Princess and Trimline telephones, the residence customer would pay a single monthly charge. This charge would apply only if the customer subscribed for three or more of the sets. It would be lower than the total of the separate charges.

For example—the minimum equipment arrangement would benefit the customers with Touch-Tone service. The single monthly rate six months in a prison camp. Rabin built up Israel's armored corps and air force into powerful striking spearheads and laid the plans for swift deployment and independent action which won the June war.

Bar-Lev also was a member of the Palmach and fought the British. In 1943, he led a raid in which the Allenby Bridge was blown up.

He studied at Columbia University and graduated with an M.A. degree in public administration and economics.

Authorities Probing Multi-Alarm Blaze

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP)—Authorities Sunday probed the flame-swept interior of the Conestoga National Bank, hoping to determine the cause of a multi-alarm fire that raced through the three-story building in downtown Lancaster.

Unofficial damage estimates ranged from $100,000 to $700,000 in the Saturday fire on Lancaster's Penn Square that attracted thousands of Christmas shoppers from nearby stores.

Fire Chief Edward Dietrich

for this package (in addition to basic monthly service rates) would be $4.50, a saving of 30 cents a month.

A customer would pay $10.75 a month for eight Trimline sets with Touch-Tone—the maximum offered under the proposal. The savings over separate charges in this case would amount to $5.05 a month.

Here are some other features of the proposals:

Customers whose equipment arrangements now qualify them for the reduced package rates will be billed at the lower rate automatically.

Customers who add equipment to qualify for the package need not pay the initial charge for color—$4 for the first set and $2 for each additional—or for Touch-Tone service, Princess or Trimline sets, $5 each.

In still another change in pricing policy, Bell proposed that all customers be given the option of paying a "one time" charge for the Princess and Trimline phones and the Bell Chimes. Currently, customers can obtain these items only by paying a recurring charge—50 cents a month each for the Princess and Bell Chimes and $1 a month for the Trimline set.

The new tariff will give the customer the option of paying the monthly rate, or a flat charge of $35 for the Princess $60 for the Trimline and $30 for a Bell Chime. The customer, would, of course, continue to pay for the use of the lines and stations that link him with the world's 210 million telephones.

Ruschhaupt said that those customers who pay the flat charge would save money after about five years. He said the three items would continue to be owned and maintained by the telephone company.

"Thus, if a person had a Trimline phone for 10 years, he would enjoy it free of charge for five years and the company would still be committed to repair it and maintain it," Ruschhaupt said.

The cause of the fire wasn't known.

Unions Growing Rapidly

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The AFL-CIO, countering the charge of Auto Workers' President Walter Reuther that the labor movement is "stagnating," said Sunday that rapid union growth is outstripping the nation's big increase of workers in most industries.

"Union membership generally is continuing to advance and gains are widespread across most of the broad spectrum of employment in the nation," said Nathaniel Goldfinger, chief AFL-CIO economist.

He said unions represent more than one-third of eligible workers in the United States "and the growth of trade union membership is continuing."

But in reporting its 125 unions total 14.3 million members, the AFL-CIO confirmed Reuther's complaint that membership has slipped as a percentage of the nation's rapidly expanding work force.

Despite 1.5 million new members in the past decade, the percentage figure has slipped from 19.3 per cent of the civilian labor force 10 years ago to 18.6 per cent now, Goldfinger said.

The big labor federation at its convention starting Thursday, however, will ignore Reuther's demand for a massive "national organizing crusade," although it will take up the problem of organizing more workers.

Reuther, who said labor negotiations with General Motors in Detroit will keep him from the convention, withdrew a sharply critical proposed resolution demanding AFL-CIO action "to get the American movement off dead center."

The proposal had urged the AFL-CIO and its unions to mount a six-year, $14.5 million organizing drive "to double the membership of the organized labor movement."

National Debate on Viet Expected in '68 Election

(C) N.Y. Times News Service NEW YORK — Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and John J. Burns, Democratic state chairman, said Sunday that the 1968 elections would turn on the Vietnam war. They agreed—in interviews—that the issue would pose problems for both major parties.

They also agreed that, with the issue to be raised in both Republican and Democratic presidential primary contests, a great national debate was assured prior to the nominating conventions and that this would be healthy for the nation.

Gen. Hershey Is Accused Of Usurpation of Power

(C) N.Y. Times News Service WASHINGTON — Kingman Brewster Jr., the president of Yale University, accused Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey Sunday of an "absolutely outrageous usurpation of power." He was referring to Hershey's recommendations that a student who obstructs the draft process should lose his deferment and be drafted.

Brewster, appearing on the Columbia Broadcasting Company program "Face the Nation," said he objected to the draft director's position on three grounds.

"I think," he said, "it destroys the whole notion of military service being a privilege and an obligation and not a punishment. I think it bypasses all the normal administrative protections of the process of law. And I think it acts as a real damper on free discussion and dissent. So, for all three reasons, it seems to me absolutely outrageous usurpation of power by General Hershey."

Brewster's remarks were part of mounting criticism of the 74-year-old Selective Service director's recent letter to the nation's 4,100 local draft boards suggesting that they declare delinquent and re-classify for induction any deferred person who obstructs Selective Service procedures.

Strong opposition to the draft director's letter also has come in the form of verbal attacks from such groups as the American Association of University Professors and lawsuits filed by the American Civil Liberties Union.

Jobless Claims Up For Week

HARRISBURG (AP) — Initial claims for unemployment compensation increased last week, while continued claims decreased, the State Labor and Industry Department reported Friday.

Initial claims, amounting to 16,051, were 1,052 more than the number filed in the preceding week, the department said. Continued claims dropped by 924 for the period to 58,698. But this was 10,751 more than were filed for the same week a year ago.

New York, said Minnesota Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy's decision to oppose President Johnson in the primaries on the war issue, thus involving both parties in the debate, was "an historic matter of great policy importance."

"It can only be helpful," he said. "After all, foreign policy is bipartisan."

Burns said McCarthy's candidacy was "a good thing to create a dialogue, to bring this out in the open and talk about Vietnam."

He conceded that McCarthy's entry would split the Democratic delegation to the National Convention, but added: "The New York delegation has been split many times." He recalled there was such a split in 1960 when the party nominated the late John F. Kennedy.

"I might add it's going to be just as disturbing to the Republican party because the Republicans are also split between hawks and doves and they haven't got a candidate yet who has taken a position," he said. "But when they get a candidate, he's going to have to take a position on Vietnam and he can't have the best of two worlds."

"He's either going to get the hawks mad at him or the doves mad at him, or he's going to take no position and be regarded as (Michigan Gov. George) Romney is today as a sort of a guy who doesn't know what he's doing and can't make a decision."

The National Drivers Test is fast becoming an annual event. The first television participation program of its kind, the test has broken records and continues to be a top attraction throughout the country.

The National Drivers Test offers a good opportunity for persons and groups to participate in a safety activity. For many it is the first exposure to the idea of defensive driving techniques and courses to teach them.

As a result of viewing the test, many viewers have enrolled in a defensive driving course. The National Safety Council feels that tens of thousands of lives could be saved each year if the majority of drivers could be familiarized with and use the techniques of a comprehensive defensive driving course.

This year's test contains a large winter driving section with specific techniques prevent accidents and save lives. Do yourself a favor — and watch Tuesday evening.

Shafer Butting a Stone Wall

Pennsylvania News Service
HARRISBURG—Valiant and determined fighter though he may be, Governor Shafer is finding himself more and more irritatingly butting his head against a stone wall.

Following the somewhat ignominious defeat last week of the administration's effort in the House of Representatives to clear a tax exemption on restaurant meals (designed to provide $8.5 million in new revenues) reaction on Capitol Hill now generally seems to be that the vote-down was as much against Mr. Shafer as anything else. Gubernatorial aides however are quick to pooh-pooh any such tie-in between the tax proposal defeat and their boss, insisting the tax defeat merely represented "modest disparity at the moment in legislative viewpoints."

That some sort of "disparity" does indeed exist within legislative ranks few will deny—but the seemingly critical point is just what the "disparity in legislative viewpoints" actually represents and means!

The fact remains that the administration's tax increase proposals have been dogged in the Legislature since mid-year, notwithstanding the fact that administration Republicans have enjoyed, and still do, control of both House and Senate. This then unquestionably places the administration and allied GOP legislative leaders in the position of being almost solely "responsible" for any legislative moves that may be made—or not made.

A Governor invariably is regarded as the "leader" of the administration line and under the circumstances the leader of his party's legislative line. Thus the tie-in between the executive branch and what happens in the legislative branch isn't difficult to understand.

Generally, but not always by any stretch of the imagination, the party in power in the legislative branch (if it is the same as the executive branch as at present) usually is regarded as prone to follow the wishes of the Governor—from the standpoint of loyalty to the great white father, etc., if nothing else.

This most certainly has not been the case with Governor Shafer during the past eleven months of his tenure—if you look at the flat record of what the legislative branch has and has not done along the line of gubernatorial wishes.

The point was underscored once again, and this time quite specifically, when the vote was taken last week on the administration proposal to drop the restaurant food exemption level insofar as applicability of the five per cent sales tax is concerned.

Theoretically the Shafer Administration, with its adequate number of votes for control of the House and Senate, should have passed the tax measure on its own—but instead, 23 administration Republicans generally, during the past prolonged, protracted and fuzed stalemate over the Shafer Administration's proposal to increase taxes by near $300 million, have maintained (rather condescendingly) that opposition of a "few" within GOP ranks.

A rundown on the "few" administration Republicans voting against the test tax measure of the past week produced the startling total of 23, which as one administration aide conceded is indeed "quite a few!"

The point is that if in-majority administration Republican lawmakers decline to heed the wishes of their own Governor (whose pleas for enactment of a tax program can hardly be reffered to as any sort of secret) it can hardly be classified as any sort of vote of confidence for His Excellency!

Hotel Suite 850

Fort Worth, Texas — Last night I slept in the last bed John F. Kennedy slept in. It is in Suite 850 at the Texas Hotel. He arrived at 11:50 p.m., on the night of Nov. 21, 1963, and was in bed by 12:30. He and Mrs. Kennedy examined the two bedrooms and the sitting room with the tawny curving couch and the television set recessed in a green Chinese cabinet. She picked the small bed room.

It faced the front of the hotel. The bed was made of brass springs, so that the headboard looked like a harp. The bathroom was blue tile and the tub was small. A local lady had set up some good paintings as wall decorations, but the Kennedys were tired and none of it met Jacqueline's standard of elegance.

She was not pleased. There was a little foyer, and, outside, the Secret Service men leaned all night with their backs against the walls. They had a direct line to the White House between the fire hose and the elevators. On a floor above, the Lyndon Johnsons occupied the Will Rogers suite. The Texas Hotel has three elevators. One was kept ready for the Kennedys at all times.

Miss San Duval, a Mexican girl, was the operator. On the main floor, Pete Saccu decided to stick around. He was catering manager and the Kennedys might want a little snack. He was called at 12:15. The First Family didn't want a snack. George Thomas, the President's butler, couldn't find the button to shut off the air conditioning. The President couldn't sleep with air conditioning.

Saccu went up, was examined by the Secret Service and given a small orange button to wear in his lapel. He went inside diffidently. The President was awake, lying on his left side in the big bed. He had removed the leather harness corset he wore to hold his back muscles in place, and he was wearing an Ace bandage on his thigh.

Saccu showed Thomas the button. It was behind the bedroom door. Mr. Kennedy asked that the window be raised a little. It was and the night air came in small gentle gusts. "That's fine," he said. Three blocks away, the Texas and Pacific diesels rattled into strings of freight cars and belted their bull horns.

Some of the off-duty Secret Service men walked up Main three bloc's to a place called The Cellar. The Cellar turned out to be upstairs. A kid at the top of the flight asked them for a dollar entry fee, then stamped the backs of their hands with an ultra-violet symbol.

The room was square and painted black and set up cost sixty cents. No booze is sold. The kids who sat around listening to the bedlam beat of music had paper bags with plants inside. The waitresses wore black bikinis. A sign on the wall proclaimed: "Tomorrow is cancelled."

In the morning, the President got up and Thomas ran his tub. Kenny O'Donnell and some others came in and Mr. Kennedy walked yawning into the sitting room. He divided the slatted venetian blinds with his fingers and saw a small crowd across the street in a parking lot. They were waiting for him.

"It's raining," he said. It was. O'Donnell said the weather report was that it would clear up. Mr. Kennedy said he didn't want the bubble top on his Dallas and he didn't want those Secret Service men running between him and the people. That was an order. In the bedroom, George Thomas and a Secret Service man began to roll up the President's special mattress.

It would be taken along with the lectern, which was called "Mother." The President asked for five-minute boiled eggs and toast and marmalade and orange juice. Saccu sent George Jackson up with it. He was a tall Negro with natural dignity. Mrs. Kennedy slept. Everybody whispered. The President ate and glanced at the newspapers. "We're in nut country," he said.

Jackson asked George Thomas if he could have a "souvenir" from the President of the United States. Thomas asked Mr. Kennedy. He gave Jackson a PT 109 tie clasp and a handshake. For a moment, the President and the waiter were friends.

Mr. Kennedy was dead in five hours. Mr. Jackson died of cancer within a year. Suite 850 looks as gracious and hospitable as ever. . . .

The Meat Inspection Bill

WASHINGTON—Whether or not the American housewife can be sure of clean meat in the packing plants not subject to federal inspection will now depend largely on two diametrically opposite leaders of the House and Senate, who go into secret huddle early this week.

The leaders are the Republican lady from Washington State, charming Mrs. Catherine May, who has posed as the consumer's champion but isn't; and the white-haired, benign Senator from Florida, Spessard Holland, an honest conservative Democrat who is under great pressure from Florida meat packers. It will be their job to reconcile the very real differences between the Senate meat inspection bill which protects the consumer and the House bill which doesn't.

Rep. Bob Poage, Texas Democrat, who is chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, has delegated chief authority to Mrs. May to negotiate with the Senate.

Mrs. May has long been close to Aled Davies, representative of the Meat Institute. She is also friendly to the big cattlemen of Washington State.

The closed-door huddles of the next two or three days will end the long battle to put packing houses which operate within state borders under the same general inspection rules as packing houses operating across state lines. The latter handle about 70 to 75 per cent of American meat production and are federally inspected. Other intrastate plants are not. The Department of Agriculture has in its files shocking reports of unsanitary conditions regarding filthy, rats, doctored meat and 4-D (dead, dying, diseased and disabled) animals.

The move to pass a stronger meat inspection bill actually began when President Johnson two years ago proposed a tougher such law. It failed to get out of the House of Representatives.

This year, the White House started on a more modest note, at which point two courageous Congressmen, Neal Smith of Iowa and Tom Foley of Washington, both Democrats, started a lone and valiant battle for the consumer. They demanded a meat inspection bill with teeth in it, to cover intrastate packing houses.

As their campaign picked up steam, Betty Furness, the White House consumer spokeswoman, issued a statement supporting them.

At this point the campaign for tougher meat inspection ran into one of those snafus which frequently occur in the executive branch of government. Old-line bureaucrats in the Agriculture Department didn't take the White House seriously. They thought Betty Furness's public statement was for political purposes; that actually LBJ didn't mean what his White House spokesman said.

This came to light when two Texas Congressmen, Bob Poage and Graham Purcell, called up the White House to complain that they thought they were promoting the administration interests as given them by Agriculture bureaucrats. When the bureaucrats were reminded of Betty Furness's statement supporting meat inspection, they replied: "Oh yeah; that's only consumer window-dressing."

At this point Presidential aide Joe Callano called a meeting at the White House and gave the word that the President was emphatically and vigorously for protecting consumers. The President favored the tough Smith-Foley meat inspection bill, it was said, and he also backed the excellent meat inspection bill introduced by Sen. Walter Mondale, D-Minn.

To reinforce this, the President himself made one of his most vigorous statements going on record for meat inspection, safe pipelines, truth-and-landing, and nonflammable products. "Nobody in this country ought to ever take a chance on eating filthy meat from filthy packing houses," the President said.

But despite this, believe it or not, Agriculture Department bureaucrats kept plugging for the meat bill introduced by Sen. Joseph Montoya of New Mexico, a state where cattle reign supreme. Finally LBJ, provoked at the bureaucrats, got hold of Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman and told him to telegraph the Meat Institute that the administration was emphatically for the tough Mondale bill, not the weaker Montoya bill.

On Sunday, Nov. 19, White House aide Callano worked part of the day with Red Leonard, assistant to Secretary Freeman, untangling this snafu and putting the administration firmly on record for the Mondale bill. Sen. Mondale had introduced four amendments: to permit any state governor to invite federal inspectors to take over intrastate plants; permit federal inspectors to enter any such plant for observation purposes; close down any state plant which became a health menace if the state refused to do so; and submit annual reports to Congress naming unsanitary plants.

The Gift Gap

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — Industry has been shamefully indifferent to the widening gift gap. Every December it offers the same tired line — neckties, picture books, glass chillers, shooting sticks, camel saddles, mink-lined egg cups. Merely reciting the list is enough to make a man want to shoot Santa Claus.

We need a whole new line of gifts. Why not, for example, a collapsible parking space? It would fold into a small package and fit easily into a car trunk, thus eliminating once and for all the time-killing, soul-grinding chore of looking for a parking space.

Canned laughter would make another excellent gift, especially if sold in the easy-to-carry sixpack. When the boss tells a joke, simply pop the top. Saves years of wear and tear on those tired old laugh muscles.

How about a Brussels-sprout-eating machine? A pocket-sized battery-powered Brussels-sprout-eater placed on the table would take up no more room than a coffee cup and would spare its owner the drab necessity of eating the things for himself. With modifications it might be converted into a splach-eating machine, making it the ideal gift for children.

The gift manufacturers suffer from tired imaginations. They should have seen years ago the sales potential of the glass-top shoe. Not only does it discourage its owner from the nasty habit of dropping the other shoe, it also gives him an unostentatious method of showing his friends that he doesn't have a hole in his sock.

The book industry has consistently ignored an enormous new market, the speed readers. What better gift for a speed-reading friend than a brand new edition of "War and Peace" printed with invisible ink?

Sunglass headlights would make a perfect gift for that hard-to-please playboy or playgirl who has to keep his/her sunglasses on in dark restaurants in order to stay in character.

And what about suit stains in aerosol cans for the man who has everything? At present, a man with a new suit or necktie has to let the necktie or suit pick up its own stains the first time he wears it.

The suit may very well want a big spaghetti-sauce stain on its lapel, but having nothing available to it the first night out except liver gravy and turbot sauce. The typical suit confronted with these unpleasant options often becomes angry and goes for both the gravy and the turbot, thus taking on two stains where one might have left it perfectly satisfied.

A gift set of spray-on clothing stains would enable its recipient to satisfy his suits' stain craving at home, thus diminishing the likelihood that the suit in its hunger may provoke a humiliating gravy spill in public.

The gift manufacturers should also market a grass shampoo. It would make a useful gift for the man who wants to resist conformity by letting his grass grow over his shoulders, but hates the idea of seeing it flecked with dandruff scales.

How about a steel rubber band for the secretary tired of having her fingers stung? How about a rubber steel-band for the parents tired of having their ears rung?

Practically everybody would be delighted to receive a ten-year's subscription to Collier's magazine, as long as the subscription surge didn't provoke Collier's to resume publication. Think of it—once every week the mailman would be committed not to slip another magazine through your mail slot.

And what about the annual gift nightmare involved in buying "something for the house"? The answer is easy. The gift-appliance manufacturers should start offering floor teeth.

These should be huge, ferocious incisors and grinders inlaid in the living-room floor so that they provide a smooth walking surface in most circumstances.

When certain material particularly repugnant to the owner—encyclopedia samples, for example—were laid upon the floor, the teeth would automatically spring open and start chewing. Then, having ground the material to shreds, they would grip it down, snap shut and perhaps, for young home-makers with a taste for coarse mischief, utter a mechanical burp.

How about a coffee table to put on a book? Why not a neck to put Christmas ties on? Wake up, gift makers of America! The excesses of affluence have barely been tapped.

Big and Little War

NEW YORK—Nothing is more puzzling to Americans than that the most powerful nation on earth is taking so long to subdue a poor little country like North Vietnam. According to conventional wisdom, the enemy should have recognized long ago that the odds against him are overwhelming and he should have given up. He has not done so as yet, and, if he is going to do it, he is taking a long time about it.

What is more, it begins to appear that even if he surrendered, there would probably be no more than a temporary truce before guerrilla fighting broke out again. As a matter of fact, it is difficult even to imagine how this war can end. Even if Hanoi and Haiphong were bombed back to the Stone Age and Ho Chi Minh signed an unconditional surrender on an American aircraft carrier, there would be no peace and Saigon and Gen. Westmoreland would still have to remain on the alert.

The war, it would seem, is unassailable in a much deeper sense than is commonly realized. It is not that our forces cannot defeat the enemy's forces in battle. It is that the battles they fight cannot decide the war. It is unwinable in the sense that a horde of elephants cannot win a struggle with a swarm of mosquitoes, not because the mosquitoes are too brave or too male, but because mosquitoes do not surrender to elephants. No mosquito can surrender all the mosquitoes that can be bred in the marsh and no government or committee or general can surrender the revolutionary peasantry of the Asian continent.

What we are witnessing is not a conflict between two military forces of different sizes, but of two military forces that are different in kind. The conflict is between two quite different military systems. One consists of a highly centralized organization using the deadliest weapons; the other consists of endlessly decentralized swarms of guerrilla fighters and terrorists.

North Vietnam is testing, so we are often told, whether "wars of national liberation" can succeed. That is true. It is testing whether guerrilla fighters with a contempt for him and an inexhaustible horde of discontented people can be subdued by military forces developed and organized to fight against equally organized powers. Our most bewildering and perhaps our most significant experience in the Vietnamese war has been that the kind of military force which brought down Japan and Germany does not bring down Ho Chi Minh and the Viet Cong.

The fact that although we are able to destroy the enemy's country and are not able to win the war is something new in our experience of warfare. We are up against something which is different in kind from anything that West Point and Annapolis anticipated. We defeated Japan and the victory endured in the sense Japan rose again and prospered and we are hoping to make it our ally. But if we could dictate peace in Hanoi after the surrender of Ho Chi Minh, it would be only a question of time before the anti-Communist and pro-American regime we had set up in South Vietnam would be undermined and would crumble.

In the long run, perhaps the most important consequence of the present war in Vietnam will be the demonstration that the strongest military power in history cannot by the use of its superior firepower impose its will on a distant people. The elephants can kill every mosquito they can trample upon. But in the marshes, the swarms of mosquitoes are constantly renewed.

Because the Vietnamese and American ways of waging war are so radically different in kind, there is no prospect on either side for a lasting military decision. The best that the North Vietnamese can hope for is that they can make life so miserable for us that after a while we shall weary of the struggle and decide to go away.

The best that the American people can hope for is that their enemies will be worn down to a point where they will have to subside. The American people have no hope that we can withdraw in triumph, leaving behind us an independent, anti-Communist, anti-Chinese, pro-American state in South Vietnam.

We are seeing how a military decision degenerates into savagery. The laws of civilized warfare have been made a mockery in Vietnam. There is the terrorism of the guerrilla fighters. There is the terrorism of the bombers which cannot and do not distinguish between civilians and soldiers. The cruelty of the war reflects the frustration of the combatants, who realize that their battles are always indecisive and always have to be fought over again. Perfectly decent young Americans find themselves under orders to commit acts which in the conventional wars are called atrocities, and the civilians at home find themselves justifying these atrocities on the very low ground that the other side is also committing atrocities.

Some of us who prefer to argue about the war in terms of our national interest and of strategic principles have shrunk from stressing the actual conduct of the war. But we are a minority among the dissenters. Over and beyond the growing objection to the casualties and the costs and the lack of a credible war purpose, the real thrust of the popular dissent is moral revulsion. There is a growing sense of guilt. Our people are becoming revolted and ashamed by the spectacle of themselves engaged in a war where a big, rich, super-armed giant is trying to beat the life out of a dwarf. Less and less are Americans enjoying the idea of themselves in such an uncivilized, unchivalrous, inhuman role. Everyone knows that this is the most unpopular war in American history. It is also the war which most deeply affronts the American conscience.

As the war goes on and when, if ever, it is over, we shall be sorting out the political and strategic lessons of what is for us—and what may be for all the world—a unique experience. Never before have we seen the greatest military power on earth find itself impotent to impose its will on a weak and alien power.

Speculative Gold Fever Subsides

(c) 1967 New York Times News Service
NEW YORK—Almost as suddenly as it started two weeks ago following Britain's devaluation of sterling, the speculative gold fever in Europe's bullion markets subsided last week. This attack on the dollar still rankles the western world, however. The most disturbing part of it is the realization that the malady could flare again at any time, unless the United States takes resolute action as an antidote.

The prompt, concerted and forceful moves of the western nations this past week gave the international speculators pause and returned a measure of calm to the gold markets.

The most constructive steps were the week-end declaration of confidence in the stability of the dollar by seven western nations meeting in Frankfurt; the $1.4 billion standby credit finally arranged on Wednesday by the International Monetary Fund to help Britain defend the pound, curbs on gold sales instituted by Swiss banks and the Federal Reserve's announcement of a $1.75 billion increase in its borrowing arrangements with foreign central banks—raising these swap agreements to almost $7 billion—to defend the dollar.

The coordinated actions and reactions of the last two weeks represent another significant victory for international cooperation in a world constantly becoming more interdependent. Financial markets in the U.S. and abroad reacted favorably. Stock and bond prices held steady and foreign exchange trading was fairly quiet and orderly.

Prices of gold-mining stocks, which had been strong two weeks, suffered sharp losses last week as the gold rush simmered down. Declines in those issues ran as high as 5 and 6 points, while the rest of the market moved narrowly and the averages showed little change.

Neither French President de Gaulle's comments on the "immutability, impartiality and universality" of gold nor Rep. Wilbur Mills' latest rebuff to the administration on the tax increase proposal were able to unsettle the financial markets. With Congress dragging its feet on the most potent segment of the necessary fiscal restraint—higher taxes—it will be incumbent on the Federal Reserve System to step into the breach. Before long the U.S. will also have to reconsider the present statutory requirement that paper currency issued by the Federal Reserve be backed by a minimum of 25 per cent of gold, the so-called "gold cover." This would be the third time in two decades that the U.S. has had to reexamine its legal gold cover policy.

In 1965 Congress freed Federal Reserve deposit liabilities—cash reserves of the banking system—from the 25 per cent gold cover stipulation in effect since 1945.

At that time the U.S. gold stock was in excess of $20 billion, almost two-thirds of world monetary gold reserves, but large as it was, it was inadequate to provide enough room for the post-war expansion of money supplies.

At the end of October the U.S. treasury's gold stock stood slightly above $13 billion, of which $10 billion had to be held as backing for the federal reserve notes in circulation. Thus, there is now only $3 billion in the U.S. gold stock that is legally available to protect the international position of the dollar.

However, temporary suspension of the 25 per cent gold reserve requirement is permitted in time of need. Such suspensions occurred in 1919, 1920 and in 1933, for a specified number of days.

With only $3 billion in "free" gold available, the U.S. will soon find itself down to the 25 per cent legal minimum gold cover.

That day is being hastened by the persistent deficit in U.S. international payments, by the growth of dollar holdings by foreign central banks and by the continuing sharp growth in monetary expansion domestically.

Dollar holdings by foreign central banks—which are a direct claim on the U.S. gold stock—increased by more than $1 billion in the week ended last Wednesday, reflecting heavy sales by foreigners.

While many financial experts, both in and out of government, advocate the end of the gold reserve requirement, there is a feeling that no legislative move on this issue should be made until confidence has been rebuilt, both at home and abroad, in the economic and financial policies of the U.S.

At a meeting of the organization for economic cooperation and development in Paris last week Eugene V. Rostow, under

Investors Maintain Busy Pace for Week

(c) N. Y. Times News Service
NEW YORK—Investors maintained a busy pace last week on the American Stock Exchange and the over-the-counter market.

Extending gains made the previous week, a number of issues moved higher this week. On the over-the-counter market, for example, Kentucky Fried Chicken jumped 24 points. In an even wider gain, University Computing rose 36 points.

Volume of both markets was described as moderately active. The National Quotation Bureau's index of 35 industrial stocks ended last week at 345.94, which was 11.98 above the previous week's close of 333.96.

A similarly strong showing was made by the American Stock Exchange. Its index ended the week at $22.80, an advance of 43 cents from the week before. Its high last week was $22.78 and its low was $21.82. Volume for the week came to 22,544,758 shares compared with 22,241,830 shares two weeks ago.

Among the gainers last week on the over-the-counter market was Dubow Chemical Corp., up 4 points on a trade publication report that it was developing a low-cost video camera recorder.

Other movers on the counter market were: Anadite, up 5½; Automation Industries, Rixon Electronics, Barnes Hinds and Birtcher, 4 points each, Computertest 5½; Graphic Controls 6; Midas International 5½ and Electrolux 2½.

But wide-swinging Memorex fell 11 points and Rucker was off 4.

Insurance issues came to life late in the week and at least one broker said the pickup indicated a good December for insurance issues. Among the gains were Aetna Life 1½; Connecticut General 3; National Fire and Accident 3 and Hartford Fire 1½.

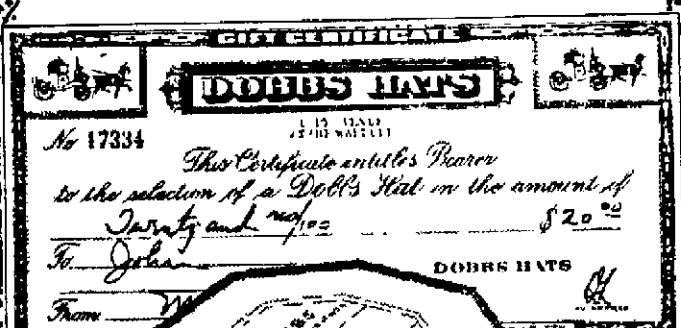

Bank stocks were quiet and trailed off some 1 to 3 points. Bunker Ramo was the most active issue of the week on the American exchange, trading 674,000 shares. It closed at 17¼, up 4½. Steima was next, up 7½ at $3½ on a turnover of 337,800 shares.

secretary of state for political affairs, suggested some of the things that ought to be done to help correct the unfavorable balance in U.S. payments.

He warned European countries to be prepared to share more international responsibilities—to see some of their huge payments surpluses decline through more capital exports, more purchases of American products or greater sharing of American military expenditures.

Rostow criticized European policies that tended to restrict imports from the U.S., particularly the border taxes being proposed by the common market countries and the "less than optimal growth policies" in some countries.

Warren-Edinboro Cagers Capture 56-54 Thriller

Eric Jones turned in a three-point play with 12 seconds remaining in the game to give the Edinboro-Warren Campus basketball team a 56-54 victory over Warren Area High School gym Saturday night.

The triumph over the favored Erie quintet, which had averaged 114 points in two previous outings, boosted the local team's record to 2-0.

Jones became the game hero after Erie had taken a 54-53 lead in the waning seconds when he bucketed a beautiful underhand, mid-air hesitation scoop shot to put Warren ahead, 55-54. Fouled on the shot, he also converted the free throw and the local five hung on for the victory to the delight of a large crowd attending the contest.

The Randasmen used a 3-2 zone and a deliberate offense to slow down the high-scoring machine of Amos Goodwine & Company. The Erie team tried a run-and-shoot game against the locals, who stayed with their game plan to give up only the outside shot. Offensively, Warren moved the ball around and took the "sure" shots, as evidenced by their 22 for 44 from the field.

Erie made good on 23 shots, but converted only eight of 17 from the foul line to 12 of 20 for the locals.

Dave Bucka again led Warren in scoring with 21 points. He hit on eight shots and had a perfect five-for-five night from the foul stripe. Paul Johnson contributed 13 points to the locals' attack and Jones finished with 11.

Goodwine, the former Erie East star, was high for EBC with 19 points. Steve Brandon had 11 and big Jim Dalley, who had scored 39 in Erie's 122-60 romp over St. Mary's Seminary on Friday, was held to 10 points.

The lead saw-sawed back and forth between the two teams in the first half, with the Warren team in command at intermission, 31-25. At the start of the second half, Erie caught fire and roared ahead by six points. Then with 3:50 left on the clock, and Erie in command, 50-41, the locals started their comeback. Warren shifted into a half-court press, with the front three playing man-to-man and two big men underneath staying in a zone, to offset Erie's stalling tactics.

A steal by Leo Schlanger, who fed Bucka for a layup, started the rally and made it Erie 50, Warren 43. Jones turned in another theft and Fred Huffman bucketed a jump shot to cut the score to 50-45 at the 2:50 mark.

Schlanger cleared a missed shot by Erie and passed to Johnston for two more points to the delight of a cheering crowd and the margin was narrowed to 50-47.

A steal by Bucka, pass to Jones and basket by Bucka cut Erie's lead to one, 50-49, with 1:42 remaining. Goodwine hit on a jumper to keep Erie out in front, then Johnston converted one of two fouls to make it 52-50. Huffman dropped in another foul shot after Erie had missed a shot in close and Warren pulled down the rebound to make it 52-51.

Warren regained possession with 20 seconds left and Johnston's tap-in after a missed field goal attempt put the local five ahead, 53-52. Erie brought the ball downcourt and passed to Dalley, their 6-5 center, who was fouled and quickly put the visitors back in front, 54-53.

Then, with the seconds ticking away, Jones pulled his heroics and the Warren Campus had hung up its second straight victory of the young season. Johnston led the locals with 18 rebounds and Jones gathered in 14 in the hard-earned triumph.

The Warren Campus is next in action next Saturday, when Shenango plays host at Sharon.

Oakland Nears AFL Western Title Colts Rally to Edge Dallas; Browns Win

VERY POPULAR MAN

A crowd seems to gather any time Boston fullback Jim Nance is around, but it's not his sparkling conversation that attracts enemy defenders. No fewer than six count 'em - six New York Jets swarm over the AFL's defending rushing champion in a game played earlier this season. The former Syracuse star got a well-needed rest yesterday as the Patriots were idle.

DUFFY CALLS 'EM! Toss of The Coin And The Wind Advantage

By DUFFY DAUGHTERTY

Head Football Coach

Michigan State University

One of my musts as a college football coach is that each letter that can be answered must be answered. If a coach doesn't answer his mail he may never know when some proud parent of a high school football star is putting him to the test.

This season I wish I had more of those letters.

Since writing this column

we've received mail from many places. Some of it's complimentary because we've tried to be gracious in defeat after having missed our goal to become the first to lead a team to three straight outright Big Ten championships.

But one letter which deals with the toss of the coin is the gist of this column. One fan

wanted to know why we decided three weeks ago against

Ohio State to kick off rather than receive.

There are many fans and even expert writers covering football who find it difficult to understand a team's decision on the toss of the coin.

They feel that the toss is made to decide which team will kick off and which team will receive.

That choice is only one of the options and it is secondary even though you will find it listed as the No. 1 choice in the official

NCAA football rules.

When our field captain wins

the toss he elects to defend

a goal that has a wind advantage. We do this in order to gain good field position early in a game when our opponent would have to kick against the wind.

Against Ohio State we won the toss and decided to defend the goal with the wind at our back.

Our defense stopped the Buckeyes on their 16-yardline, forcing them to punt against the wind. Our strategy worked because we had the wind advantage and took over on their 49.

On fourth down with one yard to go we gambled with a line play on their 41. We made the mistake of not making that yard.

We lost ball possession and

Ohio State marched 58 yards for the go ahead touchdown.

Before the start of the second half the loser of the toss shall choose one of the options. The team trailing by two touchdowns often will elect to receive.

That's all they can do because a losing team must try to get that football and then call on their strongest maneuvers to get on the scoreboard. When one touchdown behind to start the second half most teams losing the toss will go for that wind advantage.

Some people still ask how come Southern California and not UCLA is again the Rose Bowl host? They are confused

because of what happened a year ago when USC played at Pasadena despite having lost to

Pacific Eight Champion UCLA

14-7 in a regular conference game.

USC went because it had the better conference record.

The Trojans were 4-1 in 1966 conference play, UCLA was 3-1.

The Pacific Eight has since changed the rule so that its champion automatically goes to the Roses.

The Pacific Eight has no rule

preventing one team from playing at Pasadena in successive years. If the Big Ten used the same rule our Spartans and not runner-up Purdue could have smelled the Roses a year ago.

This time Purdue, whom I rate No. 1 team along with a few other coaches and writers,

can go bowling even if the Bollermakers become Big Ten champion. This could mark the second straight year for this unique setup which falls to pit champion against champion.

North Carolina State's Football Coach Honored

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) Coach Earle Edwards of North Carolina State University has been named Coach of the Year in District Three of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

This was announced Sunday by Bill Murray former Duke Coach who is now executive secretary of the American Football Coaches Association. Edwards will be made one of eight finalists for the National Coach of the Year Award made by the AFCA.

Edwards directed his Wolfpack to eight straight wins and a third-place national ranking in The Associated Press weekly ratings before losing the final two games of the season. The team won a bid to play in the Liberty Bowl at Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 16.

Edwards was named District Three Coach of the Year in 1966. He is in his 14th season at State and his 32nd year in intercollegiate coaching. He has been named Atlantic Coast Conference Coach of the Year three times.

The Wolfpack has finished either first or second in the ACC during the last five years. It won the ACC crown in 1957 and 1964 and tied for it in 1963 and 1965.

Passaro Second In Mat Tourney

Tim Passaro, a sophomore at Notre Dame, took second place in the heavyweight division in a four-team college wrestling tournament at Rochester, N.Y., over the weekend. The former WAHS athlete earned six team points for the Irish, who won the two-day event.

On Friday, Passaro, the 170-pound son of WAHS Principal and Mrs. Joseph Passaro, pinned a 243-pounder to advance into the finals on Saturday, where he was defeated by a 225-pound grappler.

Yankees Buy First Baseman from Cubs

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The New York Yankees purchased first baseman John Boccabella from the Chicago Cubs Friday and assigned the 26-year-old right-handed hitter to their Syracuse farm club of the International League. The purchase price was not announced. No other players were involved.

Boccabella hit .281 in 52 games at Tacoma in the Pacific Coast League and .171 in 25 games with the Cubs last season.

Navy Made Boastful Army Eat Its Words

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — When Coach Tom Cahill calls his wounded Army football players together Monday and reviews the 19-14 licking at the hands of underdog Navy, he probably will pass along one piece of good advice.

Ellis Finds Left Hand, Beats Oscar

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — "Right upper cut, James; bring him up, James; right upper cut, James; bring him up, James." That was the instruction light-weight Marcus Anderson kept shouting to fellow Louisville Jimmy Ellis Saturday during Ellis' World Boxing Association semifinal bout against Argentina's Oscar Bonavena. Finally, in the 10th round, Ellis took Anderson's advice, and the result was a unanimous decision over the South American champion and a berth in the WBA heavyweight championship bout.

Ellis took a solid punch to the chin, retaliated with the right in the 10th round, then completed Bonavena's trip to the canvas with a left. Bonavena also went down in the third round. The performance of his left hand was even a surprise to Ellis.

"I found I had something I didn't know I had," Ellis said after the fight. "I put him down with my left, and that shows I've got two good hands. Ellis, using the classic boxing techniques that had given him a 26-5 record, made his usual lightning start and scored heavily in the early rounds. But the 27-year-old son of a Baptist minister slowed down in the later rounds. He said he wasn't tired though. "I knew I had it won" in the closing round and just "watched for the big shot."

It was only the fourth loss for Bonavena, the slow but bull-strong puncher from Buenos Aires. He battered Ellis with a strong left-right-left in the sixth round.

In the eighth round, a cut opened over Ellis' left eye. Bonavena said he did it with a left. Ellis said Bonavena butted him. Ellis' immediate plans are to "go rabbit hunting down near Glasgow, Ky." After that, it's back to work, getting ready for the championship fight between the winner of the Thad Spencer-Jerry Quarry fight.

Bonavena says he'll vacation for a while. "Then I start over again. I will be champion someday. You wait and see."

much for the public prints. Those Navy boys read too well. They read and remember. Loose comments by Army players on the kinks in Navy's football armor came home to roost Saturday when the fired-up Midshipmen played the Cadets off their feet for three periods and won the inter-service game for the first time in four years.

The gag rule may be the newest innovation at West Point. John Cartwright, the Navy quarterback, admitted that published jibes by the Army team had helped arouse the Midshipmen in giving one of their standout performances and up-setting odds favoring Army by 7½ points. Before the game, Army's captain and top defensive man, Bud Neswischeny, known as the general, had been quoted as saying that he wasn't much afraid of Cartwright.

"Cartwright is the key to their offense," the general said. "We will have to get him, and we will. He gets rattled." Army's best pass receiver, Terry Young, added: "I'm not much impressed by Navy's pass defense." Cartwright got so rattled that he completed 19 of 29 passes for 240 yards. He hit his targets, mainly Mike Clark and Rob Taylor, with pinpoint shots. He faked the ball so beautifully that it looked as if even the officials were frequently fooled. As for Navy's pass defense, it turned out to be so effective that Steve Lindell, the No. 1 Army quarterback, was able to hit on only six of 22 attempts for 55 yards.

Army wasn't in the ball game until a sub quarterback, Jim O'Toole, came in to lead the team to two dramatic touchdowns and almost a third, all in the fourth quarter. The third was spoiled when, after getting the ball on an 11-yard punt at the Navy 27, Army's Charlie Jarvis fumbled and a middle guard, Ray DeCarle, recovered on the 20. Navy held on after that.

Referring to Neswischeny's remarks, Cartwright said: "Actions speak louder than words. I didn't feel too rattled. I kept it in mind. Our team took it as a challenge. I think the game is my answer." Cartwright broke six of All-America Roger Staubach's passing and total offense records in closing out his Mid-die career.

He completed 129 passes, 10 more than Staubach in 1963; had a total passing yardage of 1,537 — 63 more than Staubach and his total offense was 1,981 yards — 89 better than his Navy predecessor.

Over a career, Cartwright completed 307 passes for 3,626 yards and had a total yardage of 4,406, all surpassing Staubach's previous Navy marks.

RACK'N RUIN

John Zavinski of 4 Pennsylvania ave., W., had one of the most unusual experiences of the current hunting season Saturday. Seeking a trophy rack for his home, Zavinski lined up a nine-point, 150-pound buck in the sights of his .222 Winchester and made the kill. When he lifted the buck's head to inspect it, however, the antlers came off in his hands. (Photo by Mansfield)

Vols, Sooners Both Romp In Prep for Orange Bowl

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Just in case Tennessee and Oklahoma cared to look ahead, there was plenty to see. The Volunteers and Sooners, moving toward an Orange bowl collision on New Year's Day, completed their regular seasons Saturday with impressive victories.

Tennessee clinched its first Southeastern Conference crown in 11 years by bombing Vanderbilt 41-14 while Oklahoma, which had wrapped up the Big Eight crown a week ago, swamped Oklahoma State 38-14.

Alabama and Mississippi were the only other bowl-bound team to play on the final Saturday of the regular season and both had close calls.

Alabama, which meets Texas A&M in the Cotton Bowl, needed a last-minute touchdown to beat Auburn 7-3. Mississippi headed for a sun bowl date with Texas-El Paso, got past Mississippi State 10-3.

In other regular season wind-up games, Navy held off Army's last rally and beat the Cadets 19-14. Boston College tripped Holy Cross 13-6. Tulsa whipped Louisville 35-23. Rice nipped Baylor 27-25 and Southern Methodist defeated Texas Christian 28-14.

Dewey Warren's passing and the running of Walter Chadwick and Richard Pickens led Tennessee to a 64-yard strike to Richmond Flowers set up the Volunteers on Vanderbilt's three-yard line, and Chadwick plunged in to start the touchdown parade in the first quarter.

The victory gave second-ranked Tennessee a 9-1 overall record and 6-0 in the SEC, Oklahoma, No. 3 in the country, is also 9-1 after whipping Oklahoma State.

Bob Warmack tossed two scoring passes and tailbacks Steve Owens and Ron Shotts handled the power running for the Sooners.

Kenny Stabler, unable to pass because of the wind and rain, took off on a 47-yard scoring run that saved Alabama against Auburn. The victory clinched second place in the SEC for the eighth-ranked Tide.

Stabler completed only three of 12 passes for 12 yards, but his scoring run with 11 minutes to play was enough for Alabama. Mack Hawk caught a pair of key passes from Bruce Newell and scored Mississippi's only TD, as the Rebels topped Mississippi State. Hawk's first catch kept O' Miss' only TD drive going and the second one — a seven yarder from Newell — climaxed it.

Navy ran up a 19-0 lead and then, after Army had scored two fourth quarter TDs and was threatening to take the lead with less than four minutes to

Alcindor Held to 17, But Bruins Nip Mount-Led Purdue in Opener

By TED MEIER
AP Sports Writer
The road ahead appears rocky for UCLA's national collegiate basketball champions and super-star Lew Alcindor.

The Bruins just managed to beat Purdue 73-71 Saturday night and extend their winning streak to 35 in the feature game of the first weekend of the season.

A 30-foot shot by Bill Sweeik in the last second of play won for Coach Johnny Wooden's Wonders, the unanimous No. 1 choice in the pre-season Associated Press poll.

The towering 7-foot-1 Alcindor scored 17 points in his first game as a junior, but it was his rebound and pass to Sweeik that set up the winning shot. Rick Mount, Purdue's highly touted sophomore, had tied the score on a free throw with 29 seconds left but missed a shot from the corner that Alcindor grabbed for the rebound. Sweeik took the pass and shot from the top of the foul circle. It was his only basket of the game.

Although he missed the shot that would have upset UCLA, Mount made an impressive varsity debut before a sellout 14,200 in Purdue's new campus arena. He was high scorer in the game with 28 points and brought the Boilermakers from behind at 71-66 with two minutes to go.

Mount was not the only sophomore to make headlines in his varsity debut. Mike Casey of Kentucky threw in 28 points to lead the Wildcats over Michigan 96-79 before 12,761 in the new University Events building on the Michigan campus.

The victory gave veteran Coach Adolph Rupp of Kentucky No. 761 of his career. He is only 10 short of the all-time 771 chalked up by the retired Phog Allen of Kansas.

Calvin Murphy scored 41 points in his first game for Niagara, but the Purple Eagles were upset at home by Long Island U., 84-79.

"Pistol Pete" Maravich, son of Coach Press Maravich of Louisiana State, rang up 48 points in his first varsity game as the Tigers whipped Tampa 97-81 at Baton Rouge.

Soph Charlie Scott of North Carolina tallied 18 points to go with Larry Miller's 30 and helped the fourth-ranked Tar Heels beat Virginia Tech 89-76 at Chapel Hill. Another soph, Mike Maloy of 10th-ranked Davidson got 17 points and 17 rebounds to help the Wildcats beat Virginia Military 80-73 at Charlottesville.

Iowa scored a 79-73 home court victory over Bowling Green by 20 points from soph Chad Calabrita. And soph Don Ogletree scored the key points in the closing minutes for Cincinnati's home 83-79 triumph over Indiana State.

Fifth-ranked Vanderbilt had to struggle to win on the road against Southern Methodist. The Commodores pulled out an 88-84 overtime victory helped by Tom Hagan's eight points in the extra period.

Elvin Hayes, the Big E, paced the second-ranked Houston Cougars in a 110-79 romp over Sacramento State with 35 points. In another home court triumph fifth-ranked Kansas routed Utah State 84-55 behind Phil Harmon's 24 points.

Sixth-ranked Dayton opened at home with a 78-61 victory over Northern Michigan in the other game involving a team in the AP Top Ten.

Tennessee Tech beat Murray State 67-60 in the final of the Ohio Valley Conference tourney at Nashville. Murray had upset Western Kentucky 83-75 in the afternoon semifinals.

Shikellamy, Pittston Share Title

LEWISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The Eastern Pennsylvania Football Conference title is shared this year by Pittston Area and Shikellamy.

The undefeated teams battled to a scoreless tie here Saturday the first time in the 26-year history of the playoffs.

"All the credit belongs to the kids," said Dick Purnell, coach of Shikellamy which was the Southern Division champ. Pittston Area was Northern Division titleholder.

"They displayed the type of heart and desire we've had all season," Purnell continued. "Pittston Area has a great team and we did ourselves proud to earn a tie with them."

A record crowd of 10,500 braved chilly 38-degree weather to watch the contest in Bucknell University Stadium.

Both teams came within scoring turf but their drives fizzled short of the end zone.

Pittston Area dominated the statistics, notching 19 first downs to Shikellamy's 8, and tried a field goal from the 29 in the final minute.

But Ed Booth's kick was blocked and Shikellamy moved to the Pittston Area 20 in two plays. Then the clock ran out.

There are a lot of good cars you can get for $3400. This is two of them:

If you don't happen to need two cars, there's only one thing that you need less. One car that costs as much as two cars.

Unless you want to pay a lot of money for a lot of horsepower that you'll never use. There's only one state in the country where you can go faster than a Volkswagen — Nevada. (No speed limit — they're big gamblers out there.)

The only extra horsepower you really need is for all those power gadgets. Which you need to drive a car that size. Which has to be that size to hold all those horses.

All of which also makes the average car cost almost as much to run as two Volkswagens. Consider if a VW gets as much as 27 miles to a gallon of gas.

But if you're still not sold on the idea of two bugs for the price of one beast, why not take advantage of this special introductory offer — one Volkswagen for half the price of two.

Pfc. Frank E. Gregory, USMC son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Gregory, Route 2, Sugar Grove, has completed basic training at Parris Island, South Carolina and Camp LeJeune, North Carolina. After twenty days leave at home, he will go on to Camp Pendleton, California, for further training.

Gunners Mate Seaman Karl J. Peterson, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Karl J. Peterson, of Route 1, Jamestown, is serving with the U.S. Navy in South Vietnam. Assigned to Inshore Undersea Warfare Group I, whose main responsibility is harbor defense, he has participated in one of the important operations of the Navy's Coastal Surveillance effort, "Operation Stable Door."

Teachers Do About Face

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP) — The Pennsylvania State Education Association, one of two striking teachers groups in Scranton, did an about face Sunday and showed up at contract negotiations.

PSEA spokesman said late Saturday night that they would boycott Sunday's talks because they wanted to be allowed to present their demands before the Scranton Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, a smaller group.

Both teachers groups, which struck on Friday, closing down all schools in this Northeastern Pennsylvania city, showed up at noon Sunday.

Margaret Deviney, PSEA Scranton branch president, had no comment when asked about her group's abrupt return to the bargaining table.

After negotiations recessed Sunday for dinner, James A. Kelly, school board attorney and chief negotiator, said, "We are making excellent progress in view of the fact that we spent a whole day yesterday arguing over procedural and technical matters."

After negotiations recessed Sunday for dinner, James A. Kelly, school board attorney and chief negotiator, said, "We are making excellent progress in view of the fact that we spent a whole day yesterday arguing over procedural and technical matters."

Discussed, he said, were a number of non-salary demands by both teachers' groups. "I'd say we are about 50 per cent through with these issues," he said.

Not discussed were salary demands.

The PSEA, which claims about 480 members and announced more than 600 teachers attended its "continuous seminar" Friday, said it planned to continue the seminar Monday.

The teachers union, estimated to have about 250 members has set up picket lines at the city's 41 schools.

The school board, meanwhile, said schools will open Monday. It made the same statement Friday when many of the system's 16,000 pupils stayed home and those who showed up were sent home because almost no teachers appeared.

The PSEA had asked an immediate pay hike of $1,300 a year and the SFT wants $1,500. The school board has offered $500 this year and $500 next year.

Teachers currently earn between $5,000 and $8,000.

Supermarkets Relent; Obey Sunday Closing Law

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Major supermarkets relented in the face of legal pressure and obeyed the state's Sunday closing law. Some operators said they were glad to close.

Shapp Backer Will Support Sen. McCarthy

HATFIELD, Pa. (AP) — A backer of last year's unsuccessful campaign for governor by Democrat Milton Shapp says he is organizing a drive to slate delegates to the Democratic National Convention in support of U. S. Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy.

Michael H. Malin, 34, a lawyer and chairman of the Make Shapp Governor Committee last year, said Saturday the Minnesota Democrat might even be persuaded to let his name be entered in the Pennsylvania presidential preference primary next April 23.

McCarthy announced himself as a peace candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination last Thursday and said he would enter at least four primaries — in Wisconsin, Oregon, Nebraska and California. He said he would decide later whether to enter primaries in New Hampshire and Massachusetts.

"If we were to go after signatures on nominating petitions today we could get 10,000 without any trouble in 18 to 20 counties," said Malin.

All McCarthy supporters would need would be 100 signatures in each of 10 counties to put his name on the ballot.

Malin said he has strong support among regular Democrats and independents in the Pittsburgh area as well as in Philadelphia. He said his group, which has no name, no treasury, and no headquarters, is drawing heavily on contacts he made in Shapp's 1966 campaign.

last Monday that the contested Sunday closing law was constitutional.

Some supermarkets in Allegheny County had stayed open Sundays for months under Common Pleas Court protection pending the Supreme Court decision.

Giant Eagle and Thorofare markets announced quickly last week they would abide by the high court decision.

But other chains and independents said as late as Friday they'd stay open until they heard from Dist. Atty. Robert W. Dugan.

Saturday Dugan notified local law enforcement agencies to report any supermarkets staying open. Supreme Court Justice Michael A. Musmanno warned the markets that to stay open "may constitute contempt of court."

A&P and Kroger's then said they would close. And the supermarket which contested the law in the first place — Bertrera's Foodland in Beaver County — closed for the day.

"I am happy that the large supermarkets have accepted, as they should and must, the decision of the Supreme Court," said Musmanno. "It would have been a stupidly spectacle indeed, for these large houses to be operating in defiance of the law."

Henry Fry, owner of a Foodland market in Pittsburgh's suburban Bethel Park, said the high court "has done me a favor or actually."

Forest Fire Training Session Set

Forest fire fighters will grapple with forest fires without the blistering heat, choking smoke and exhausting long hours usually connected with the fire fighting on December 7th and 8th, 1967, when selected Allegheny National Forest workers meet at Sheffield.

They will perform this amazing feat using a fire control simulator. The simulator is a portable classroom-control booth combination. The trainees sit in the darkened classroom looking at a large screen on which a colored slide of a forest scene is projected. Also projected on the screen from the control booth at the rear is make-believe fire and smoke which appears to move and spread in response to winds, fuels and topography.

Trainees take turns at ordering men and equipment and directing their work on the fire, using the telephones and radios in the classroom. Role players in the control booth answer and supply with taped recordings and sound of trucks, planes and other fire equipment when needed.

It all adds up to realism—the purpose of the make-believe fire situation. If men are trained to perform quickly and efficiently under the stress of a realistic make-believe fire, they will perform quickly and efficiently when faced with a real forest fire. The simulator training will be

Federal Fund Cuts Expected To Delay Hatchery Project

By DON NEAL
When the late Congressman Leon Gavin secured authorization for the construction of a fish hatchery (Public Law 86-205) at a site below the Kinzua Dam, he assured the Warren area of what will undoubtedly be one of its outstanding tourist attractions. Although originally scheduled for completion in 1970, it is expected that current government regulations against funding new federal projects will delay its operation to some extent.

In general, the new facility supplemented by five hours of conventional classroom instruction in safety, records keeping and techniques of fire fighting.

The training session will improve the ability of the men now qualified as crew bosses to put out wild fires using either trained or untrained men. The crew bosses are the backbone of the fire control effort on the Allegheny National Forest.

was planned to replace the federal hatchery formerly operated on Farnsworth Run and increase the production of trout for stocking streams of the surrounding countryside in Western Pennsylvania and Southwestern New York State from the 30,000 pounds produced at the Farnsworth facility to approximately 125,000 pounds annually.

It is expected that five employees will be required to operate the facility. The staff will consist of a hatchery manager, assistant hatchery manager, clerk-typist, hatchery assistant, and fish hatcheryman.

When completed, the facility will consist of all of the necessary installations needed to produce the required poundage of fingerling and adult trout, plus a visitor center. This visitor center is not only planned to provide entertainment for those visiting the hatchery, but be informational and instructional as well.

It will consist of two public rooms, an auditorium with a projection booth and seating capacity for several persons and an exhibit room in which an aquarium displaying live fish will be located.

Adjacent to the building containing the auditorium and exhibit rooms, there will be a fountain, display pool, flagpole, and parking facilities for visitors.

As a part of the operational installations there will be a series of double raceways 500 feet long that can be divided into 40 separate operating units, a main hatchery office building, utility building, four residences, an aerator, and quarantine building. With the exception of the quarantine building and visitor complex, the hatchery grounds will be enclosed by a chain link fence.

Officials of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Bureau of Sport Fisheries, have indicated a possibility that the river bank extending along the hatchery will be developed to permit fishing in the tailwaters of the Kinzua Dam.

First Graders Like Reading

New Reading Programs Stimulate Interest

(Special to the TMO)

The primary years have a special significance in the school life of most children. It is during these years that a youngster establishes his feelings about school. Either school becomes a good place to be, or one to which he goes with increasing reluctance, mounting anxiety, and often open dislike.

Most boys and girls enter the first grade eagerly and with enthusiasm. This is the year they are going to "real" school—this is the year they will learn to read. As every first-grade teacher knows, many a youngster is disappointed when he doesn't learn to read on the very first day of school. Maintaining children's eagerness to learn at a high level, after they've discovered that the process isn't instantaneous, is most important. We know that the child who continues to like school, who comes willingly, is usually the child who is best able to learn.

The teacher of reading has a particularly crucial part to play in helping a child adjust happily to school. A child who leaves the primary level without the ability to read adequately and to communicate his thoughts clearly in written and oral English, will be a handicapped child in his later school years.

When a child falls behind the other boys and girls, the feeling he has about himself and his own competence are likely to be sorely damaged. Among our school drop-outs and delinquents there is a high proportion of children who have suffered humiliation and discouragement in the classroom, often because of reading difficulties.

To help children maintain confidence through the complex, often slow process of learning to read, the primary teacher needs an understanding of the developmental growth patterns and the needs of the young school child. Only as she suits her methods of teaching to these growth patterns and needs will she be able to avoid discouragement for the child as a learner—and for herself as a teacher.

For each child who entered a first grade in the Warren County School District this year the first experience with books could have been exhilarating. Hundreds of delightful children's books pour from the press each year. Modern reading programs include interesting and stimulating materials. We now have tools and methods for developing reading skills for all levels of children. We recognize that children learn to read in many ways. A child learns at his own pace. We must provide a learning situation for him without stigma attached to the pace.

If he learns best through his eyes, use predominantly visual methods in teaching him to read; if he is one of those who learns best through his ears techniques are utilized which will help him to use his ears as well as his eyes.

We know that background makes a difference, too. In a school district as large as the Warren County School District, geographically speaking, we know that we are confronted with students that possess a wide range of environmental backgrounds. With these known conditions the Warren County School District is presently employing a number of reading programs that appear to best meet the needs of students in a particular attendance area.

In the Sheffield attendance area Pitman's 1/4 program is utilized in first grade. This approach to the problem of beginning reading is the result of much research on the part of an Englishman, Sir James Pitman. Pitman's "Initial Teaching Alphabet" is a simple systematic notation which is used in beginning reading books and which is continued until the child has acquired fluency and competence in the art of reading. At this point the student transfers his skill to reading and writing with our standard alphabet and traditional spelling.

The 1/4 approach is based upon the belief that an ideal reading program is possible under der two conditions: (1) where the language contains as many letters as there are sounds, and, (2) where each letter always stands for one sound.

English as it is spoken, can be broken down into forty-four different sounds. The letter "o," for example, stands for one sound in "gone" but a different sound in "done," and it changes its sound twice more in "bone" and "one." The child soon discovers that there are other similar situations in the English language. As a result, the general rule of the 1/4 approach is that words are spelled as they sound; one would be spelled "wun," bone would be "boen," table would be "tabl," sky would be "skide," etc. While there are rules for the teacher to follow, the child has no rules. He is first encouraged to spell as he speaks; later, the teacher begins to modify this procedure in terms of encouraging correctness of encoding sound as well as correctness in terms of the transition into which he is going.

With the 1/4 medium, the child quickly sees that written characters are highly dependable symbols for speech sounds. It makes reading and writing such a simple process that the two activities are learned simultaneously. They supplement each other, and the child learns rapidly.

The transition stage generally takes place at the end of first grade and second grade. The ease of the transition process is one of the key factors in judging the success of the 1/4 medium. The child, of course, is surrounded from the very beginning with materials printed in the traditional alphabet on the outside of school as well as in the home, on television, in newspapers, etc. It has been found, through research, that the child will be curious about the printed word and will want to read such material as he sees in his home. He is encouraged to do so as this does not have a negative effect on his learning in school. Instead, it will enhance his ability to make the transition more naturally at a later date.

In the Tidoute attendance area a non-graded reading program is in operation on the elementary level. This program is based upon the belief that the school curriculum should be democratically organized to provide a desirable environment where the children of all abilities are provided the opportunity to grow at their individual rate in their uniquely personal ways—physically, emotionally, mentally, and socially.

Grouping for reading instruction where children with like learning needs are placed together attempts to provide natural leadership in each group. The evaluation of pupils is an important factor in the non-graded reading program based on reading levels. To facilitate adequate grouping the following instruments are utilized in the process of evaluation: Metropolitan Readiness Tests, Reading Tests, Achievement Tests, and Group Intelligence Tests. Other bases for evaluation include daily classwork, oral questioning, emotional and social maturity, and the combined judgement of the teachers, counselor, and principal.

As the child progresses through the learning sequence at his own rate of speed he is permitted to cover material so often denied him in a graded system. A child is not limited to one level of material, but may cover several levels in a year's time. No time limit is established for the completion of any level. There is no established amount of material to be covered in a year's time. Each child is encouraged to work at his own rate of learning and this rate may vary within a year's or over several years' time. The child may either move from one level to another or from one room to another at any time during the year. These moves are based on the needs of the individual.

The individual interests of each child are stimulated, guided and developed by his school experiences. One of the major

Mrs. Mary Cronmiller discusses 1/4 reading program with an interested parent, Mrs. Mary Ellen Condo.

Individual instruction is given by Mrs. Margaret Marshall of Plank Road elementary school.

aims of this program is to teach the child to perform independently and to develop an intrinsic motivation toward the solving of school and social problems.

The linguistic approach is employed in teaching reading to first grade students at the North Warren Elementary School. Linguistics means the scientific study of language. Linguists are scientists who study our language in terms of its basic structure. This study includes such areas as sound patterns, stress and intonation and syntactic structure. Linguists define language as the system of speech sounds by which human beings communicate with one another.

Linguists recognize the fact that since birth the child has been surrounded by a language, or, a system of speech sounds. He hears his language with its intricate patterns since birth; he begins to speak it himself at about the age of two. By the time most children come to school, they have a speaking vocabulary of several thousand words and can use and understand a variety of sentence patterns.

Teaching children to read is a matter of helping them recognize words and sentence patterns in printed form which they already use and understand in speech. To assist beginning readers in understanding the relationship between the sounds (phonemes) of our language and the letters (graphemes), linguists have classified words (morphemes) according to their most basic phoneme-grapheme patterns, such as man, fan, can, or mat, fat, cat, etc.

In beginning reading, pupils are presented with words that follow consistent spelling patterns, thus, eliminating for the child the necessity of memorizing every word to be learned. This is because the unlocking of one word will help them unlock the pronunciation of the next, and so on indefinitely. Irregularly spelled words can then be introduced in a controlled and gradual manner as exceptions to the basic structure being learned. In step-by-step progression, the regular spelling patterns of the language are covered until the child has developed a set of techniques for decoding written language into speech. A child should gain independence and develop a feeling of security through reliance of these skills when confronted with a new or difficult word.

Guessing as well as memorizing are eliminated when pupils learn to use the letters of words to trigger the sounds of language. In the initial stages of reading, no word is included that is not already in the child's speaking vocabulary. This makes it possible for the child to move from the sounds of language, which he already knows, to the spelling pattern which represents those sounds, to the meaning which the sounds convey.

As pupils gain skill in the decoding process, they are able to read increasingly more complex materials in which inferences, shades of meaning and concept development play an important part. Linguists believe that when problems of word recognition are reduced to a minimum, the real job of interpretation and concept development can be fostered without the distracting need for help with word identification. It is believed that in a linguistics program the child realizes that he can read, and this success is the very best kind of motivation.

All first grade students at Youngsville and one first grade class at Pittsfield are being instructed in the field of reading by a method known as "Phonetic Keys to Reading." This system of instruction differs from traditional reading programs in two very important aspects. First, the readiness period equips pupils with basic word-attack skills by introducing them to all the letters and the most frequently used sounds of the English language. Secondly, the readiness program stresses comprehension of spoken language as a preparation for reading comprehension.

An example of instruction by the Phonetic Key method might best be explained in the following manner:

The teacher tells or reads an "interest-story" to the children. Guided discussion of interest-stories not only paves the way for reading comprehension but causes certain words to be used verbally by the children. As these words are used, the teacher asks the pupils to listen carefully for certain sounds in the words, which in turn leads to word attack. The sounds heard in the words are associated with letters or letter patterns. A knowledge of sound-symbol relationship makes words easy to unlock. The ability to unlock printed words and associate them with their spoken counterparts plus the ability to glean meaning from groups of words enable the pupils to begin effective work with written English.

When the pupils get further into the program, they are challenged by more difficult words, longer and more varied sentences, and longer and more complex stories.

As can be seen these four methods employed to teach reading to first graders in different attendance areas of the Warren County School District are in many ways quite similar. A complete evaluation will be made of the various approaches in comparison with the traditional approach which is employed in all other elementary schools of the district. A complete reliable evaluation of these programs will, by the very nature of the complicated art of learning to read, require a rather lengthy period of time. For example, at the end of the fifth grade how does the 1/4 student compare with a fifth grader who received his primary reading instruction by a different approach? To answer this and similar questions the verdict concerning the feasibility of these approaches cannot be made for some time.

The School Board and professional staff fully realize that no other teaching achievement is quite so satisfying and personally rewarding as that of helping a child gain the skills needed to enable him to guide and direct his own learning. Reading is such a basic skill. The wisdom of the ages and mysteries of the universe are open to all who can read effectively. Reading is truly the keystone skill of human existence.

WHICH REMINDS ME OF AN ADVENTURE OF MY OWN. Did you ever get locked out of your house close to the midnight hour, with an anxious dog on the leash who's even more worried than you as to the dreadful possibilities of sleeping hunched up in the hall all night long? We have a second floor apartment, and such was the plight of Timmie (guardian, friend and dog) and me on Saturday evening. The minute I went out the door with him on the leash for his evening airing I knew I was in trouble. With the key inside I had slammed the door shut after me! All the windows were locked, so that eliminated going through the acrobatics of climbing out the front hall window and into my living room window via the porch roof. After an exasperating struggle with a neighbor's screwdriver—(with her saying, "After all, this is how they open all the locks in the movies," and me finally muttering "Just wait until the next Hollywood epic tries to tell me it's so simple it can even be done with a hair pin! They'll get a letter to end all letters!")—to my rescue came two of Warren's finest. With good cheer and quick efficiency they had me back in my apartment in no time—Thank you, Officers.

A very good chance to study the background of China and U.S. Foreign policy in relation to that country is offered members of the League of Women Voters of the Warren area at the December 5 and 7 unit meetings of the league.

Mrs. W. J. Sedwick, Foreign Policy chairman for the local league, and her committee, Mrs. Arthur J. Honhart, Mrs. Lawrence P. Sowles and Mrs. J. Russell Hanson, will present a review which focuses on the questions "Does China Have Any Reasons To Resent The U.S.?" and "Is there any justification for her to resent

Discussion leader on Tuesday evening will be Mrs. David A. Smith. Mrs. James Potter will lead the Thursday morning discussion. The local League's Finance Drive is progressing well toward its goal. A final appeal is being made to the community for support to help the continuance of our program of promoting better government.

Wake Up Your PERISTALSIS And Be Your SMILING BEST

Peristalsis is the muscular action of your digestive system. When peristaltic action slows down, waste materials can build up in the lower tract. You can become irregular, uncomfortable, stuffed.

The unique laxative formula of today's Carter's Pills gives effective, temporary relief of the irregularity by activating the slowed-down muscles of the lower tract and stimulating peristalsis. # Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please say a word about airline pilots who think they are disc jockeys. I travel a lot and I'm sick and tired of those chatty fellows up front who sound as if they are auditioning for a talk show. Thanks a lot. —TWO BOURBONS TO BUFFALO.

Dear Buffalo: I'm with you. I enjoy hearing the pilot give the passengers a friendly hello after take-off. It's reassuring to know there's somebody up there. But after we get off into the wild blue yonder I'd just as soon he tended to his navigation.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: As the mother of three children I am gravely concerned about what is happening to morality and simple decency in this country. Yesterday I went to the market to buy the week's groceries. I purchased some breakfast cereal with lettering on the box indicating "surprises for the kids inside." When I reached home I decided to check out the "surprises." This is what I found: An assortment of buttons which read, "My mother is a swinger." "Send your parents to camp" and "God is not dead, he just doesn't want to get involved."

I telephoned the manager of the market and asked him if he knew what was in the cereal boxes. He said, "Yes, buttons. All the kids are wearing them." I told him MY kids would not be wearing them because the buttons, in my opinion, were atrocious. He replied, "Those buttons are mild compared with some I've seen. Yesterday a woman came into the store wearing a button which read, 'Lee Harvey Oswald, where are you now when we need you?'"

Please tell me, Ann Landers, am I a batty old woman or are these buttons an insult to the dignity of decent people?—CONNECTICUT YANKEE

Dear Connecticut: The buttons in the cereal box are, to my way of thinking, not amusing and in bad taste. Why on earth the cereal company thinks it's smart to encourage kids to ridicule parents and make jokes about God is beyond me.

The Oswald button is more than bad taste—and I can't believe it came in a cereal box. It is a vicious insult to our President, and anyone who thinks it is funny possesses a sick, sick sense of humor.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I are in our middle forties. Mel is a brilliant man even though he has had only one year of high school. He knows all about law, medicine, religion, space and so on. Mel works in a factory although he feels the job is beneath him. He says he wants to keep his mind free from pressure.

Last year I had a female operation. Mel says that after such an operation a woman is as good as dead. He never was very enthusiastic when it came to love-making. Now he shows absolutely no interest at all because he says I have nothing to give.

Frankly, I feel more romantic now than I did when I was 21. Will you please explain why my husband has these peculiar ideas?—A VERY LIVELY CORPSE

Dear Lively: Your husband is trying to transfer the blame for his inability to perform. The female operation you describe in no way diminishes a woman's sexual capacity. In fact, it often increases it. Your husband should see a doctor and learn why HE is as dead as the time in his life when he should be in his prime.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN
(1957 by The Chicago Tribune)
ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠5 ♥KJ86 ♦KQ10 ♣AKJ87
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—Four hearts. Even if partner has made a bad response, you should not wish to play for less than game. Your hand is worth 30 points in support of hearts. Remember that a jump to three hearts would permit partner to pass.

Q. 2—Neither side vulnerable and, as South you hold:
♠1072 ♥AJ10975 ♦K72 ♣4
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
3 ♣ Pass 1 ♥ Pass 4 ♣

What do you bid now?
A.—Partner has shown a strong hand. You should, therefore, be conscious of slam, and it is suggested that you bid at least five spades. This is a vague sort of bid, of course. At this level it is hard to be precise, but you must get across to partner the notion that you have some cards which will be highly useful to him.

Q. 3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AJ85 ♥AK96 ♣AK764
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ Pass 2 ♣

What do you bid now?
A.—Three hearts. While we did not choose to open this hand with a two demand bid, prospects are better now than they were at the start, simply because hearts, a suit which would have been our best, are marked with both opponents. This makes the likelihood very great that we will find a fit with one of our suits in partner's hand.

Q. 4—Neither vulnerable, and as South you hold:
♠9 ♥AQ1086 ♦A75 ♣AQ43
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♥ Pass 1 ♠ Pass 2 ♣

What do you bid now?
A.—Three hearts. While you have the values to proceed to three no trump, your own preference should be for a heart contract if that is agreeable with partner. North will either raise to four hearts or return to three no trump.

Q. 5—East-West vulnerable, and as South you hold:
♠AQ6 ♥KQ9 ♦AQ552 ♠104
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
Pass Pass 1 ♣ Dble. 1 NT Pass Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Double again. Even the partner was unable to make a free bid, you should not abandon this hand, which contains 17 points in high cards. A bid of two diamonds is not recommended; the double could result in a late leave-in by partner, which might prove profitable.

Q. 6—As South, both sides vulnerable, you hold:
♠A742 ♥AK864 ♦J6 ♣32
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♦ Pass 2 ♣ ?

What do you bid?
A.—Pass. There is no action that you can take with safety. Against an opening bidder and an adversary who has been able to respond at the level of two, it is extremely risky to reach for an eight trick contract with a hand that may well produce no more than four tricks.

Q. 7—Neither vulnerable, and as South you hold:
♠864 ♥AQJ1075 ♦K84 ♣A
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♥ Pass 2 ♣ ?

What action do you take?
A.—Our own preference is for a rebid of merely two hearts which is, to be sure, somewhat of an understatement, and yet a jump to three hearts would be a shade too aggressive. There is no need to pass when partner has made a free bid and, therefore, intends to move toward game.

Q. 8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠J87 ♥AQ10974 ♦AK5 ♣AK5
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♥ Pass 2 ♣ Pass 3 ♥ Pass 4 ♥ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—Six hearts. North has shown a good hand, first by responding at the level of two, then by showing the spade control and subsequently by supporting hearts. He should, therefore, have the necessary ingredients to produce 12 tricks.

Your Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars, FOR MONDAY, DECEMBER 4, 1967:

ARIES (March 21 to April 20)—Notice some of the things that you haven't paid attention to before. Many have unusual backgrounds and are rapidly developing new phases. Weave your destiny in a logical pursuit.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21)—High-mindedness and some prize winning art is possible if you don't try to "keep up with the Joneses." Don't be glib, neither crawl when you can vault ahead. Rule out rashness.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)—Your range is a wide one, it clings the mountains, the sea and the smooth land surface. You keep your proper distance—but maybe too often. You can be an instrument for peace.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23)—Nothing sudden about you, and you are strengthened by those you love. You may be drenched with burdens at times but nothing dampens your spirit. You enter and exit softly. Tabu vanity.

LEO (July 24 to August 23)—This can be a charming, a fascinating or a frustrating period, so watch your beginnings and procedures. Some things will seem interminable, but you can cope. You are empowered with credits.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23)—No one ever took a Virgoan as being empty-headed. You are not willing to give up what you have for something less, and you are slated for new permissions and engagements. Work keeps you young.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23)—Whatever your occupation, you will embrace it wholeheartedly. And whatever you do you will gain the attention of co-workers and authority. The Sign of the Scales. You never dismiss anything unfinished.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 23)—A sort of knock-down and drag-out period. Informality will stand in some places, but it definitely WON'T in others. Administer your chores in order and without meaningless talk.

SAGITTARIUS (November 24 to December 21)—Active mentally and ready to carry the courage of your convictions. A bright disposition with a noticeable dignity. Watch out for arrogance and that old meanie PRIDE. You have know-how.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20)—In forming anything you do not hesitate to use others' examples and typical illustrations. But remember each person's development depends chiefly on his own efforts. You can inherit, but will you carry on?

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19)—Some of the most unusual and outstanding characteristics are here. You will follow the letter of the word and you do not care for opposition. Do you find things impossible to handle or impossible to overcome?

PISCES (February 20 to March 20)—Don't back down once you have started anything, because actually your inheritance is achievement. You can be humble and come from the outside to finish first. Calculate carefully.

YOU BORN TODAY? Distinctive characteristics. Actually people born in Sagittarius are varied in nature. You like activity and the mystery of the universe. DON'T carry things to extremes. Anyone wishing an enterprising partner could safely look to this zealous Sign. You are happiest when employed by those who wish many things done. Normally you speak the truth—bluntly sometimes, too. Keep your jovial self the ruler of your temperament. Though you do not always seek changes by nature it falls to your lot.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases. CHEST WALL DEFECTS

Deformities of the breastbone (sternum) usually develop before birth. They may be hereditary; or represent nature's poor workmanship. Some babies are born with an opening down the center. The heart may protrude from the front of the chest when there is no solid bony support in this area.

Infants also are born without certain ribs or cartilages that connect the ribs with the sternum. A partial absence of the upper ribs on one side is the most common deformity of this type. These youngsters also lack the pectoral muscle and breast on the same side. According to Dr. Mark M. Ravitch of the University of Chicago, these defects should be corrected surgically because they become accentuated with the passage of time.

Depression of the breastbone (pectus excavatum) is one of the most common chest deformities. The concavity varies in depth and may reach the vertebrae in the back. In most instances, the depression is in the lower part of the sternum and creates a problem when it presses upon or displaces the heart. It may be noted at birth but can be missed until the infant is a few months old. As the child grows, the front of the chest flattens, the shoulders become rounded and the head is thrust forward. Some develop a potbelly.

The condition seldom causes symptoms during infancy. According to Dr. Ravitch, mothers report that the type is more vigorous, energetic, and eats better than her other offspring. Older children are handicapped slightly, in that they cannot tolerate severe physical stress without tiring or becoming short of breath. Occasionally pressure on the heart induces serious cardiac incapacity. Plastic surgery not only relieves distress but corrects the cosmetic defect. Protrusion deformities (pigeon or chicken breast) are just the opposite. The sternum is broad and the center may stick out like the keel of a ship. Surgical correction is feasible if needed.

TOMORROW: Low-cal Sweeteners. Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

REDUCING IN SPOTS
Mrs. D. writes: Is it possible to lose 25 pounds from the waistline and hips and keep the upper half of the body as it is?

REPLY
No. Exceptions occur as a result of wasting in neurological diseases affecting the lower extremities. CHIGGERS WILL TELL YOU
E. W. writes: How can you tell if you have chiggers?

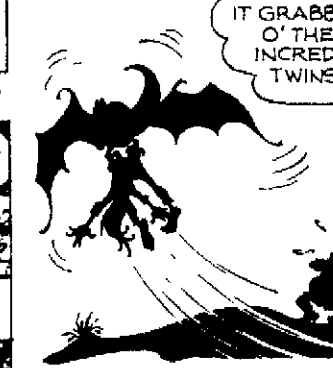

The pests cause itching, redness and congestion. They become imbedded most frequently over the lower parts of the legs, usually as a result of walking thru grass and weeds.

Area Land Owners Reminded To Order Tree Seedlings Now

District Forester Bob Ache, U.S. Dept. of Forests and Waters District 14, reminds land owners of Warren, Forest, Erie Crawford and Venango counties, that it is again time to order tree seedlings to be planted next spring on abandoned fields or open area which it is not planned to cultivate or use as pasture land.

Seedling applications may be obtained from Dept. of Forests and Waters, 6 South Hammond St., Warren, or requested by mail.

Species available this year are: white pine, Austrian pine, Norway spruce, black locust, European larch, Japanese larch, red pine, pitch pine, white spruce and European alder.

Cost of seedlings is $6.00 per thousand, if picked up at nursery or $7.00 per thousand delivered to District office in Warren.

Hybrid poplar cuttings are also available, at a cost of $16.00 per thousand.

Deadline for ordering trees is February 15, 1968, but Ache warns: "The longer you wait the more limited selection of species becomes."

It is observed that on proper sites hybrid poplar growth rate is extremely rapid. These cuttings should be planted only on deep, well-drained soils of moderate to good fertility. Hybrid poplar is sensitive to competing vegetation. Therefore, all weeds, grasses, etc., should be removed from an area four to six feet in diameter surrounding the plant, and kept free of vegetation for the first two years. Spacing is not less than 8 ft. by 8 ft.

The four Pennsylvania Dept. of Forest and Waters nurseries are located as follows:

William F. Dague (formerly Clearfield) on Route 153, between Clearfield and Penfield.

Mont Alto, on Route 235, one mile east of Mont Alto.

Penn (Spring Mills), on Route 322, one mile south of Potters Mills.

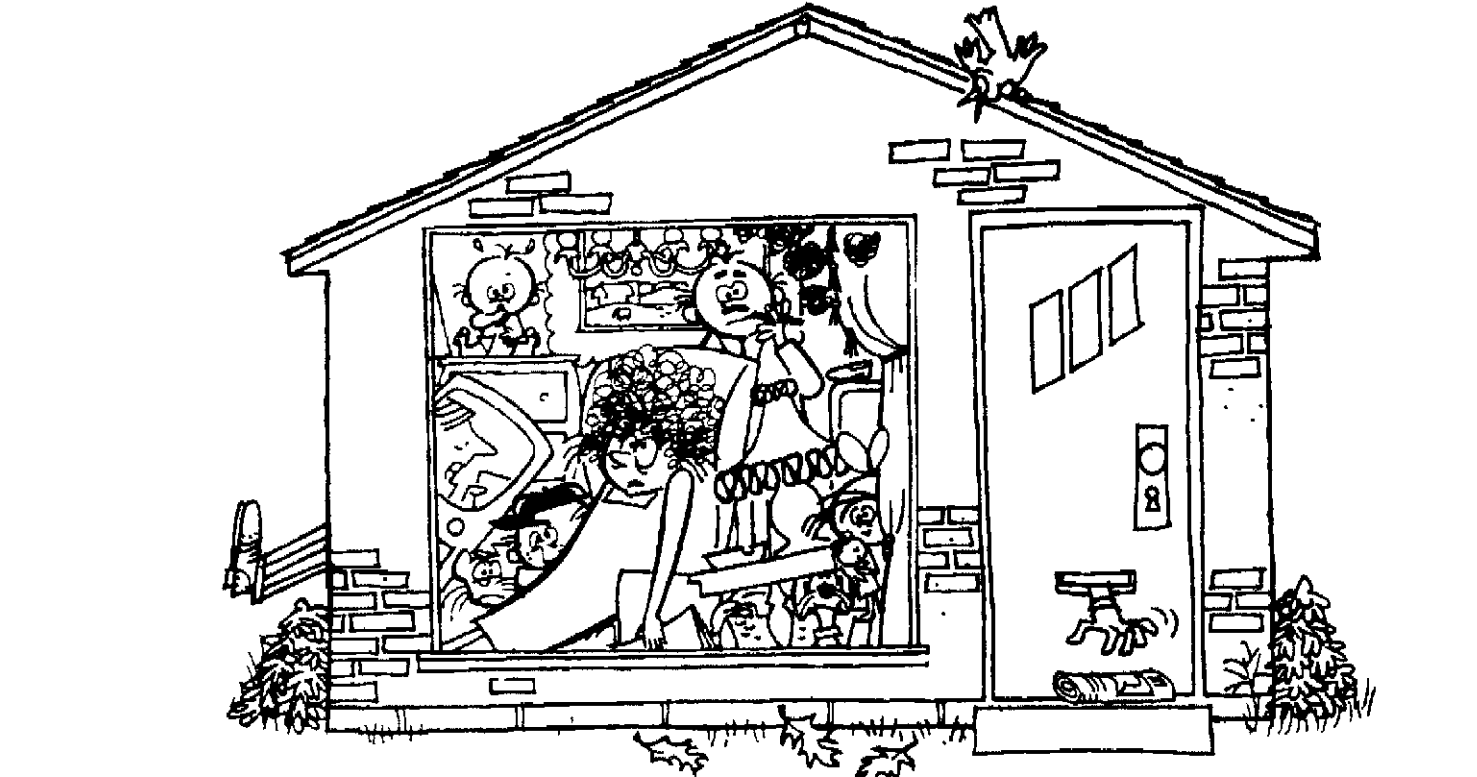

Greenwood Furnace (Huntingdon) on Route 305 between McAlleys Fort and Belleville.

Detailed planting information is contained in a publication: "Forest Trees to Plant in Pennsylvania," available at the District Forestry office in Warren or from the Department of Forests and Waters, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, Harrisburg, Pa., 17105.

Minimum orders acceptable are 1,000 seedlings. The order may be split into 500 each of two species.

YOU'VE HEARD OF THE HOUSE ELECTRICITY CAN HEAT

~~$10.00~~
"FOR $9.00 MORE A MONTH?"
~~$8.00~~
~~$7.50~~

THAT'S ABOUT THE SIZE OF IT.

It's just as the electric people say—you can heat electrically for about $9.00 a month or $10.00, or $7.50, or whatever—more than you'd pay for Gas.

Provided you're not heating anything much bigger than a doll house. And if you don't want a heated basement. And if you seal up everything like a vacuum bottle.

But if you live in a real house with real people, be realistic. Based on published utility rates, it costs up to three times as much to heat with electricity as with Gas. Your savings with Gas heat can run up to thousands of dollars over the life of your mortgage.

That's a lot of money to pay for the chore of fiddling with separate electric heat controls in each room. A lot to pay to trade filtered-clean, fresh air-circulating Gas heat for stale, warmed-over electrically heated air. Very expensive indeed to own a chilly, clammy basement.

Next time you're thinking about building, buying or renting a home, think realistically. Think about the fact that you'd have to pay up to three times as much to heat the same people-sized house with electricity. Then think of all the things you can do with the money you save with Gas.

That's about the size of it.
